COL. ASTOR MAY WED IN EUROPE

ELEONORA SEARS TO WED SOON

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—The marriage of Colonel John Jacob Astor and Miss Madeline Force, the announcement of whose engagement a few days ago has caused an unparalleled stir in church and social circles may take place in Europe.

Six bishops of the Episcopal Church have decreased the marriage, and this fact gave rise to the rumor to-day that the marriage might not take place in this country.

A reporter for the AMERICAN called on William H. Force, the father of the bride-to-be, at his office in Front street, and asked him if there was any truth in the report.

"I cannot say whether the marriage will take place in this country or in Europe," replied Mr. Force.

It was learned to-day that should Colonel Astor and the Forces decide to hold the wedding in this country, arrangements have been made for the services of a clergyman of a denomination other than the Episcopal Church. The Astors and the Forces have both been identified with the Episcopal Church. The honeymoon will be spent on the Nona, Colonel Astor's splendid yacht, and later they will make a tour of Europe.

Fashionable Newport attended the Astor cup races to-day between the racing yachts of the New York Yacht Club fleet. The largest reception took place on the yacht Nona, owned by Colonel Astor, whose fiancee, Miss Force, was the centre of interest. The yacht was thronged with society buds and young matrons.

Miss Force appeared in a white flannel suit with a blue sash. She wore a blue pleated hat. Colonel Astor never left her side for a moment. Some of those in the merry company were Miss Beatrice Astor and her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas, Miss Mildred Sherman, Miss Laura Gillespie and Francis Roche and his twin brother, Ernest, sons of Mrs. Clarence Roche.

A persistent report in circulation at Newport to the effect that the Rev. Dr. William Stafford Jones, pastor of the Channing Memorial Unitarian Church of that city, has been asked to perform the marriage service and had consented, was set at rest to-day when the clergyman emphatically denied the story.

"I have not been asked to marry Colonel Astor and Miss Force," said the Rev. Dr. Jones, "and if I should be asked I should be obliged to decline. I do not understand how the impression had got about that I was to perform this ceremony. I know Him only as a friend and impression, because I have been asked about it before."

DR. WILKINSON DENOUNCES CRITIC OF COL. ASTOR

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—The Rev. William Wilkinson, the Wall Street outdoor preacher, has again descended to the Rev. Dr. George Chambers Richmond. To his audience Mr. Wilkinson referred to "an obscure clergyman in Philadelphia" and said he had "held up to scorn, by name, two persons and families.

The Rev. Dr. Wilkinson added:

"Be it clearly remembered, these two were not in this parish, diocese or city. One is a young woman eighteen years old.

"This I stamp as a public outrage, on all pulpit propriety, decency and morals. If private affairs are to be named, condemned and cast out from the church, order is at an end.

"He slandered the noble and honored dead (Dr. Morgan Dix of Trinity). Neither young womanhood nor dead manhood halts this man in his slanderous words.

"This true Pharisee tells us he is not as we are, nor is he paid by a rich corporation. We need some new John to ask him, 'Tell me, thou furrow-faced fool, if the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness!'

"I have faith in the bishops and local clergy of our church and know that those who have to do with weddings will keep the law."

TAUNTON STATION ROBBED IN DAY LIGHT

TAUNTON, Aug. 10.—In broad daylight, and while many persons were nearby, robbers broke into the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad passenger station here last evening, and stole more than $30 in cash. The police were not notified of the break until to-day.

No tickets were taken, and a large amount of cash was overlooked by the robbers in their haste.

Elsoven M. Sears has surrendered at last to Cupid who sits a long, long siege.

Miss Sears's marriage engagement to Harold Sterling Vanderbilt will be announced, it is understood, in August 19th, at a luncheon given in the Boston girl's honor at the Newport residence of her prospective mother-in-law, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont.

Society in Boston, New York, Newport and in fact all over the world, for Miss Sears's fame is practically world-wide, is intensely interested in the news that their engagement of the youthful millionairess and the jolly, athletic and white-clothes Boston girl, is to be formally announced at the luncheon.

"Wolf! wolf!" has been cried so often about Miss Sears being engaged to this man or that man, that this latest report was received at first with some skepticism, but the event appears to be little chance for doubt in this instance.

Sisters Called in Council.

Whether, of course, Mrs. Belmont is distinctly silent on the matter, preferring to have announcement of the bright news emanate from either her son or from Miss Sears, it is regarded as extremely significant that Mrs. Belmont's sisters, Mrs. William Tiffany of Paris and Mrs. William Sloane of New York are her guests at Newport, and will be for the remainder of the season. At Newport it is generally accepted by those conversant with the affairs of the family that the visit of Mrs. Sloane and Mrs. Tiffany were made with the idea of having a family council on the Harold Vanderbilt-Sears matrimonial alliance.

Young Mr. Vanderbilt has been spending a good bit of time at Newport this season and it has been remarked that his visits have always been timed exactly with those of Miss Sears. There really is little or no surprise here over the affair.

The announcement of this engagement will be the termination of a long and bitter battle between Harold Vanderbilt and Paul Rainey for the hand of Miss Sears, who has appeared to favor first one and then the other.

Was on Cupid's Seesaw.

When Harold Vanderbilt was taken ill in California several years ago when Miss Sears rushed to his side.

When Paul Rainey started for the Arctic to hunt musk oxen and polar bears a little more than a year ago, Miss Sears was the next person to lose the ship and it was understood that Mr. Rainey left sealed letter to comfort him on his way.

When Mr. Rainey returned Miss Sears was the first to greet him.

Shortly after Mr. Rainey's return Harold Vanderbilt again appeared to be the more favored one. Then Mr. Rainey announced that he would go to Africa to hunt lions and elephants. Society wondered what could have sent him away again so quickly.

Two weeks ago word was received from Mr. Rainey that he would remain in Africa.

Now comes news that Miss Sears's engagement to Harold Vanderbilt will shortly be announced.

Several times it has been rumored that the engagement existed between Miss Sears and Vanderbilt, but chiefly because of Miss Sears's spectacular open-air ventures—it has always been said that she was not the marrying sort.

However, neither she nor young Vanderbilt has ever denied such rumors, although the girl athlete and the young millionaire frequently have disavowed their reported engagement to others.

Both are wealthy, although Miss Sears of course, has nothing like the fortune of the young man, who is a son of William K. Vanderbilt and a brother of Willie K. Jr., the automobile enthusiast, and of the Duchess of Marlborough. Miss Sears is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Sears of No. 122 Beacon street, this city.

Has Ideals of Manliness.

Miss Sears is tall and masculinely built. She is given to wearing mannishly cut coats, stiff collars or stocks, and—on occasion—breeches. Not very long ago in an interview she said:

"Most of the men of our set in New-

'INFAMOUS LIE,' SAYS PERKINS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Financial conditions in New York city during the panic of 1907 were described by George W. Perkins to-day before the Steel Trust investigating committee.

When asked if the banks were not responsible for the 1907 panic Mr. Perkins declared it was "infamous to say so."

When Mr. Perkins took the stand there was no apparent danger that he would have to serve a jail sentence for contempt of the committee in refusing to answer questions about campaign contributions.

During the recess of the committee Mr. Perkins was approached by a group of reporters who asked for a statement relating to that subject.

Mr. Perkins, during his account of the conditions in New York in the panic of 1907, was asked what he thought of Harry Gates' ideas of governmental control and more radical regulation of the corporations. Mr. Perkins said:

"There ought to be something done in the line of governmental publicity of the big corporations. I agree with Judge Gary to that extent, but as to the advisability of government regulation of prices I can not agree with Mr. Gates. There must be a stop to industrial progress under such an arrangement.

Defends Standard Oil.

"Now we have reached a point in the regulation of corporations where the government officials, under their sworn duty to enforce laws enacted by Congress are dissolving the Standard Oil Company into some thirty-seven parts. I have never been associated with any one interest or person connected with it, nor interested in it. But the Government has been working for years to find out about this company, which was built into its present form by Mr. Rockefeller. It has been no effort made by the government to discover what good and what evil has been done and what experience it has had with its labor. Now the attitude of the government towards the Standard Oil Company is a danger signal—a red flag to other corporations.

"Yes, but a corporation dissolved by enjoining the directors liable to violate the law," said Chairman Stanley.

"I think the building up of the great steel corporation owns no similarity to the Standard Oil Company," said Mr. Perkins. "The organization of steel companies, the private matters of officers. I have not objected or refused to furnish this committee with the minutes of the subsidiary companies."

Wrangle With Counsel.

Mr. Lindabury, counsel for the United States Steel Corporation, objected to the remarks of the chairman.

"Of course," he said, "a majority of the stock of the subsidiary companies is held by the United States Steel Corporation, and it controls the minutes of the subsidiary companies. I have not objected or refused to furnish this committee with the minutes of the subsidiary companies."

HUNT FOR ELOPERS IN BOSTON

Detectives, telephone, telegraph and all other means of search that frantic relatives with unlimited money can devise are being used throughout New England in order to find "Jack" Geraghty, the $50-a-week Newport chauffeur, and his charming bride, formerly Miss Julia Stone French, the Newport and Tuxedo heiress, who eloped and were married yesterday.

After the family of the bride had traced the couple to Central Village, Ct., where the marriages took place, and had then lost the trail temporarily, a more thorough and elaborate search was begun.

The last known of the couple was when they boarded the 10:02 train for Worcester at Central Village yesterday morning. This brought them to Worcester at 11:35. Hence a broad field of flight lay open to them. They may have kept on to Boston, or gone direct to Portland or the White Mountains, or doubled on their trail and fled westward to New York.

Search Boston Hotels.

Boston hotels were visited by detectives to-day. Every hostelry where it was thought the couple might possibly house, if they are in this city, was visited. Armed with photographs of the bride, the detectives questioned clerks and hall porters in the fear that the bride circles under once arm her Pomeranian pet dog was mentioned as a distinguishing distinction. But, up to a late hour this afternoon, no trace of the pair was picked up in the Hub.

Two routes that the Boston & Maine inaugurated a new express service from New York to Portland, via Worcester and Fitchburg, are favored by those who know the White Mountains and Maine districts as way of the old Worcester, Nashua & Rochester, and the favorite route of the keen-witted and determined chap—as his cold and successful wooing shows. He may have decided that a quick retreat to some mountain or Maine resort was the best for himself and his bride, as here they may have avoided Boston just because it is one of the first cities in which search would turn.

The money of the bride's relatives to catch the fugitives is only equalled by the fame of "Jack" Geraghty himself.

Not since Victoria Mercedes eloped with her father's coachman, Ernest Beard, from Riverdale-on-the-Hudson in 1881 has society known anything like it.

The elopement has created a wave of agitation and will extend from Newport, New York and Philadelphia, across London, Paris, Rome and the Riviera, where the bride's family has relatives and connections.

Well, If They Find 'Em?

Just what would happen were Mr and Mrs. Geraghty to be located no one could say. They have committed no crime, save that of having run off and married. But society and its hired investigators are on the trail, for this was one of the most startling elopements of recent years, and orders were out to bait the couple where ever they might be found.

John Edward Paul Geraghty was a chauffeur and salesman for a Newport garage. He is twenty-one years old and the son of a liveryman.

His bride was Miss Julia Stone French, nineteen years old, heiress to a million at least, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Amos York French of Newport, New York, Toledo, and incidentally favorite niece of Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt, former wife of Alfred Gwynn Vanderbilt.

Late last night it was said Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt was motoring at high speed from town to town in New England, endeavoring to pick up the trail of the runaways, and that Mr and Mrs. French were keeping the wires hot in all directions in their efforts to find them. None succeeded.

From Newport to Central Village, Windham county, Ct., is an air line run of about thirty-seven miles. But young Geraghty and his prospective bride were on the road a full ten hours before their pursuers threw into central Village. They had traveled more than 100 miles. They had made their way through the most unfrequented roads; they had often retraced their way and generally left behind them a tangled and confused trail. At no time, apparently, did any of the pursuing motor cars come near to overtaking them, though in Central Village in the night it was reported that just about the time that the two clerks was drawing up their marriage license (which was at 4 o'clock in the morning) a motor car with four men in it had gone dashing

PEASANTS PRAY FOR THE POPE

VENICE, Aug. 10.—Masses for the recovery of Pope Pius were said throughout Venetia to-day, and many a little mountain chapel was visited during the morning by peasantry, who murmured prayers for the safe keeping of their patron saint.

Pope Pius is known to as humble men born of Venetia as Giuseppe Sarto. His family name, and their love is attached to some mountain or Maine resort was the for himself and his bride just how they may have avoided Boston just because it is one of the first cities in which search would turn.

The money of the bride's relatives to catch the fugitives is only equalled by the fame of "Jack" Geraghty himself.

Not since Victoria Mercedes eloped with her father's coachman, Ernest Beard, from Riverdale-on-the-Hudson in 1881 has society known anything like it.

The elopement has created a wave of agitation and will extend from Newport, New York and Philadelphia, across London, Paris, Rome and the Riviera, where the bride's family has relatives and connections.

BODY OF GIRL IS EXHUMED

The body of Maud Stevenson, who died under mysterious circumstances at a hotel in Revere on No. 4, was exhumed from its grave at Goffstown, N. H., upon requisition by her father, Edward Stevenson, who has been investigating the case since he was beaten and kicked by several young men a few days before his daughter died.

An autopsy was performed in Medical Examiner Dickson and Dr. Frank A. Lyon a few days ago, and the report is expected to be completed and delivered within a day or two. Dr. Lyon has had charge of the case for the removal of the body for burial in the family lot in New Hampshire having been decided it was not a case of foul play. The undertaker and two doctors in charge of the town also attended the body, and it was buried last Tuesday. The entire family of the deceased, came to Lynn and settled up its relegation on his own account. Dr. Dickson's report to the effect that there was no authorities in Lynn and Revere, has been received, although there was no city medical inspector in his condition. Dr. Dickson and Marchisfava believed that the removal of their patient into more cautious quarters had had a good effect. The attending physicians considered their action as to prevent complications from a fresh attack of gout and to alter the fever.

The Pope was somewhat worried to-day over the illness of his sister, Rosa, who is suffering from the effects of the oppressive heat wave. He asked Dr. Petacci to visit her twice daily. The other two sisters, Anna and Maria, and the Pope's niece, Gilda, are caring for both patients.

HISGEN STICKS FOR GOVERNOR

Thomas L. Hisgen, the Springfield independent oil man, will be a candidate for Governor of Massachusetts this Fall and his friends declare that he has already enough pledges from four western counties in the State to insure his name going on the Democratic ballot.

If defeated in the caucuses, however, Mr. Hisgen intimates that he will run independently. He says he is going to run because he wants to make the trusts the chief issue in this State, which is twenty-five years behind the times on the trust question.

RELATIVES TOO SLOW GETTING ON TRACK OF ELOPING CHAUFFEUR

Arrived in Great Distress.

It was at 2 in the morning when Miss French and Geraghty, with their faithful chauffeur friend, who was an expert in the matter of Connecticut roads, arrived in Central Village. They were in distress. They came bumping on a flattened tire. And they had no reserve tire to repair the injury. The coping car was a wounded bird. Otherwise, it was said, their intended was to continue down to New London. But Central Village was to be the scene of their wedding.

For two hours they seemed undecided what course to take. They were pretty well exhausted and the town was in utter darkness. Only the single policeman was there. He sauntered over and when he found the cause of their distress he told them that Landlord Riley of the Central Village inn was a most kindly-natured man and would not take it ill if he was awakened at that hour in the morning. So they went to the inn and the landlord evidently came so well up to the policeman's description that Miss French told him all about the affair and Jack said: "We want a minister and we want one as quickly as we can get him. Do you know anybody around here that'll marry us?"

"It so happens that I do," said Mr. Riley, beaming. "There's a minister right in this house. He's a good friend of mine, an old friend of mine. He'll marry you."

"Hooray," Says Groggins.

"Hooray!" cried Jack, and Miss French clapped her hands joyfully. Landlord Riley said later that at no time did Miss French seem to have doubts as to her desire to be married to the young chauffeur. He only expressed fear was that they might be overtaken and she dropped away before the marriage ceremony could be performed.

It was necessary that they should have a license. But there seems to be a tender spot in the hearts of all the good folks of Central Village, for a fleeing pair of lovers. Landlord Riley took Geraghty to the home of E. L. Adams, the Town Clerk. Would the Town Clerk get up at that hour in the morning and issue a license? He grinned down from an upper window. He would. Soon thereafter, armed with seals and form, he arrived at the inn and the license was made out. The bridegroom gave his age as 27 years; Miss French gave hers as twenty-one, though in Newport it is said she is over eighteen. But eighteen as old enough anyway, for a girl to be to get married in Connecticut.

Minister Readily Agrees.

All this had taken some time. The clock was ticking at 5 o'clock in the morning. Landlord Riley went up then to appraise the minister of the couple downstairs. He was the Rev. L. C. Perry, congregational pastor of Hanson, N. H., but formerly of Dayville, Ct., where Landlord Riley had been postmaster. The minister promptly arose, dressed and came down to the hotel parlor and interviewed the young couple. After inspecting their license and considering the replies they made to his questions, he said he could see no cogent objection to the marriage. By this time all the maids and women folk of the hotel were up—all joyously excited over the elopement—and they had come to their door with the dawn.

Accompanying the Rev. Mr. Perry was the treasurer of the Hanson (N. H.) church, L. H. Cross. He consented to act as a witness. Mrs. Agatha Adams, one of the proprietors of the inn, consented to act as the other witness. The maids were much inspirited and cutting peculiarly into one of it was the barking of a little French bulldog that Miss French had suddenly had to bring with her when she left Newport. She escorted Miss French to the finest suite in the inn where she had repaired to make more the travel stains, rearrange her hair and prepare generally for the nuptials. Up to Landlord Riley's own room, young Geraghty was leading the same. Some of the maids had hurriedly rushed out and brought to the scene of field flowers which they stuck in homely vases and placed about the room.

Bride Radiant With Smiles.

But finally, shortly before 5 o'clock in this crowded parlor the Rev. Mr. Perry married the chauffeur and the heiress. Young Geraghty promptly producing the little plain gold band for her finger. She made the responses most earnestly. Miss French showed no tears. She was self-possessed and radiant with happiness.

"Now," she said, when the ceremony was ended, "we can all sit down to breakfast and it will not make any difference if it lasts us."

The inn's chef—a big, fat negress—broiled chickens and ham and potatoes and brewed coffee and crisply fried potatoes—and filled the air of wedding breakfast spread in the Newport heiress' honor. Then they were taken to the 10:42 train for Worcester. The chauffeur waved them "good-by," and with the landlord he drove back to Newport. He was requested to come to the police station when he got there. But he wasn't arrested and after a brief talk with the chief he left the station house and furbished up the coping car to the garage.

The whole story of the runaway marriage then leaked out from Newport. Young Geraghty, it appeared, had been for a Newport motor concern most of the year, but occasionally during the Fall and the Summer. He is good looking, well educated and popular. His failing was said to be a habit of the resort and drives a high-powered car himself, getting most of it from the Casino and Reading Room. His father, also, is one of the idle people.

Geraghty several times was called to the French home to take Miss Julia out in an automobile. That was none of the Newport folks began to notice he was meeting her at times when his employer did not need to require it.

The young man's devotion was known not only in society circles but among the people of the fine shops.

Mrs. Geraghty, mother of the bridegroom, the last night received this message by telegraph:

Central Village, Ct.—Married this morning at nine after all night trip. Keep cool. Signed JACK.

"I was hoping for more definite news," said Mrs. Geraghty. "I do not know just what happened. I had several talks with Jack last night. He received this message and had to break up their going together. He did not want to make it difficult for me, and I certainly did not know what was actually going on between the boy and the girl."

When the fete for the young heiress was being held last Thursday night Jack went in the grounds as he did the previous night, as Miss French danced first one and then the other of the men who had come to dance the cotillion with her.

Jack came home last night for supper, left an automobile outside and changed his clothes and then came to supper. He was in high spirits. Then suddenly he jumped into the machine he wore a large coat, and left without saying what he was going to do.

"I know my boy and Miss French have been seeing each other for at least two years, and she was in love with him. When Jack came home from the country last Spring, selling automobile supplies, they came together again, and I thought I have heard of their being together more than once attempted to elope. But this couple, but with no success."

By his elopement with Miss Julia Stella French of Newport and Dutchess, Jack" Geraghty, chauffeur at $50 a month, has annexed the following gaudy collection of relatives-in-law:

Uncle-in-law—Major-General Lord Cheylesmore of London, grenadier at the coronation.

Aunt-in-law—Lady Elizabeth French Cheylesmore, aunt of the bride.

Father-in-law—James Buchanan French, native of Boston, Harvard '85, millionaire corporation director and member of Knickerbocker, Metropolitan, Union, Grolier, Harvard, Myopia Hunt, Boston Town, City, Turf and Field, Tuxedo, Newport and Coney Island Jockey Clubs.

Mother-in-law — Mrs. Josephine Leroy French.

Grandmother-in-law—Mrs. Frances Osmond French of Villa St. Priest, Cannes, France. Pre was Miss Frances York, daughter of the late Amos Tuck, attorney general of and Congressman from New Hampshire. She is the mother of Amos Tuck French, who is named for his maternal grandfather.

Grand-uncle—Edward Tuck, Paris, millionaire and benefactor of Dartmouth College.

Aunt-in-law—Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt, former wife of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt and sister of Amos Tuck French, the bride's father.

Brothers-in-law—Stuyvesant Leroy French of Newport and Brookline, '07, Harvard, 1912, Josephine Leroy of the bride, and Samuel J. Wagstaff, Long Island millionaire who married another sister of the bride.

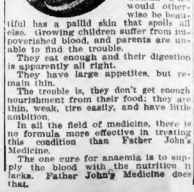
THIN AND PALE

There's No Need of It—How to Gain Flesh.



The pale face and lack of color is a sign of Anaemia, or thin, weak blood. Girls and young women are sufferers from this disease. Many a woman who would otherwise be beautiful has a pallid skin that spells ugliness. Growing children suffer from impoverished blood, and parents are unable to find the trouble.

They eat enough and their digestion is apparently quite right.

They have large appetites, but remain thin.

The trouble is, they don't get enough nourishment from their food; they are thin, weak, tire easily, and have little ambition.

In all the field of medicine, there is no formula more effective in treating this condition than Father John's Medicine.

The one cure for anaemia is to supply the blood with the nutrition it lacks. Father John's Medicine does that.

BASLE, Switzerland—The tenth Zionist Congress opened at the City Casino with 500 delegates, representing nearly every part of the globe. David Wolffsohn of Cologne, the President, reviewed the thirteen years of the Zionist movement since its inception. He declared that it was the ardent desire of the Zionists to become a loyal and useful part of the Ottoman Empire, which throughout history and at present, he said, had been exceedingly kind to the Jews. Max Nordau followed with an address depicting, in the darkest colors, the present situation of the Jews in Eastern Europe. Nothing was left for them, he said, but to work out their own salvation, and the Zionist hope was the hope of those Jews who wish to live. Dr. Nordau was elected President of the Congress.

Prince Henry in Auto Crash.

OSNABRUECK, Prussia—Prince Henry of Prussia was in another automobile accident, but escaped unharmed. While returning from Holland his car swerved and crashed into a tree, near Kloppenburg, twenty miles from Oldenburg. The Prince's companion, Adjutant von Usedom, was slightly injured, and the chauffeur's skull was fractured.

Airship in German War Game.

HAMBURG—In accordance with the wish of Emperor William, aeroplanes will participate for the first time in the army maneuvers to be held near Altona beginning August 26.

Nearly 100 Degrees in Paris.

PARIS—Paris is hotter than ever. The official thermometer at the Mont Souris observatory yesterday registered 99.6 degrees.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANK FILLED UP

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 10.—The postal savings bank at Bremerton, the seat of the Puget Sound Navy Yard, is full, and unless the Postmaster-General takes action the situation not another cent can be deposited. This is due to the fact that both of the Bremerton banks accepted as depositors for the postal savings institution have all of the individual savings funds they are permitted to handle.

LOST GIRL FOUND IN NEW YORK HOME

Miss Chip Gettel Ciebel, a Russian girl who mysteriously disappeared from her home on the South Station, was not abducted, but has been found in the home of an uncle in New York. She came to Boston to meet A. B. Ciebel of Roxbury, her brother, but did not find him because he had moved. The girl was found by Detective Ferris, who was suggested as an investigator of the case by the Watch and Ward Society.

$25 FOR AN ATTACK UPON A CONDUCTOR

In Dedham Court to-day, Edward W. Sherman of Hyde Park was fined $25 for assaulting Charles E. Snow, a conductor on the N. Y., N. H. & H. The assault upon Snow, who wore glasses, took place Monday night, on a train that was leaving Boston. Sherman paid the fine.

MISS SEARS WON BY VANDERBILT

port are sissies. They won't do anything that calls for exertion. I admire more than any other man a groom, because he's strong and will always take a sporting chance."

Many a "sporting chance" has Miss Sears taken. One of her exploits was to swim from Bailey's Beach to Easton's Beach, in Newport, a distance of more than four miles. This had never been done by a woman.

She swam it in three hours and a half, only a little way behind the best marvellous record.

As soon as she got out of her swimming costume she jumped to the wheel of a motor car and drove at a sixty mile clip.

Early last year, while visiting in California, she wagered $200 she could walk from Burlingame to Del Monte, a distance of 108 miles, in fifty-five hours. The agreement was that she was to be accompanied by relays of escorts. She donned trousers, heavy boots and other masculine make-up, and started out. But she walked away from all the men, and after having covered more than half the distance in less than half the stipulated time she gave up because she was "lonely." No one could keep pace with her.

Donned Polo Costume.

During the same Western visit Miss Sears astounded her hosts by a polo costume in which she appeared. The Burlingame team was playing its rivals one day and was short a rider at No. 8. Miss Sears volunteered, and came on the field dressed just like the men, in silk shirt and tight breeches. She was not allowed to participate in the game and became very angry.

Miss Sears entered the aviation game before any other American girl. First at the meet at Squantum, near Boston, and then at the international affair at Belmont Park last fall she appeared as a passenger of Claude Grahame-White, the British expert, who won most of the money and honors at both places.

Harold Vanderbilt is a Harvard man, and is engaged in the legal department of the New York Central Railroad, which his family owns. He has spent most of his time, in recent years, with his mother. He is an unassuming, likable young man of twenty-three years. Miss Sears is about two or three years his junior.

50 KILLED IN A GERMAN COAL MINE

BOCHUM, Prussia, Aug. 10.—Some fifty men were killed in a disaster at the Hannibal coal mines to-day. Sixty miners were entering the pit to begin their day's work when the cable of the cage which they were using suddenly severed broke, dropping the party to the bottom of the shaft.

TIME GROWS SHORT

We have only a few more days at this location, and the task of getting rid of our enormous stock of men's, women's and children's high-grade shoes stares us in the face.

There is only one way to sell shoes in a hurry and that is to slash the prices. If prices mean anything, we should fill our store with buyers every day until our lease expires. The early buyers catch the best bargains.

MISS CHAPMAN TO END CASE

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Mrs. Roy E. Pierce, known on the stage as Bessie Chapman, has finally decided to permit the sensational case brought by her husband, the son of Henry Clay Pierce, president of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, for the annulment of their marriage, to be settled out of court.

On a previous occasion, after Justice Morschauser had severely characterized the attempt of Mrs. Pierce, she expressed a desire to have the case ended out of court, but later resumed her fight.

At the hearing of the case last May in the Supreme Court in Newburg, the elder Pierce and a brother of Roy E. Pierce, gave testimony bitterly attacking the character of Mrs. Pierce and she put in no defence at all.

How to "Shed" a Bad Complexion

It's foolish to attempt to cover up or hide a sallow complexion, when you can so easily remove the sallowness, or the complexion itself. Rouge and the like on a brownish skin, only emphasize the defect. The better way is to apply pure mercolised wax—the same as you would cold cream—putting it on at night, removing it in the morning with warm water and soap, following with a dash of cold water. The effect of a few applications is simply marvelous. The half-dead cuticle is absorbed by the wax—painlessly, gradually, in tiny imperceptible particles—revealing the beautiful velvety white new skin beneath.

No woman need have a sallow, blotchy, pimply or freckled complexion if she'll just go to the druggist's, get some good mercolised wax and use as suggested.—Woman's Realm.

"LICKED? NOT MUCH," SAYS FINNERTY, NAHANT INSURGENT; "WE WON OUT"

Man Who Stood Out Against Senator Lodge Says He Got What He Wanted.

Battle Over Plans for New Town Hall for Which Senator Came From Washington.

"Oh, what's the use?" say the bosses of the Nahant town machine. "You can't do anything with that man Dan Finnerty.

DANIEL G. FINNERTY, Insurgent Leader.

Nahant insurgent who led a band of seventy-five against the Lodge faction in a new town hall contest; and Finnerty is satisfied that he won.

By claim, he doesn't even know when he's licked."

Which, Finnerty being an insurgent, is true.

It was given out with all due and regulable publicity on Tuesday night that Finnerty and his Spartan band of seventy-five advocates of a fireproof town hall had been squelched in the special town meeting presided over by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and that the Lodge plan for a "reasonably fireproof" town hall had been adopted.

But Finnerty, leader of the devoted seventy-five, refuses to believe he was licked. He figures it out he won.

"Licked me, did they?" he said to a reporter for the AMERICAN.

"Well, you can tell those Boston folks it was a big victory for Finnerty we had at the town meeting. To be sure, the particular plans I submitted were not accepted, but I don't care anything about that. The Finnerty idea, the Finnerty principle came out victorious, and that's the important part. Aren't we going to have a new and thoroughly fireproof town hall, instead of rebuilding an old fire trap? Well, that's the point."

Something About Finnerty.

Daniel G. Finnerty is somebody in Nahant. Don't forget that for a moment. An all-the-year-round resident of Nahant for the last ten years, a plumber by trade, a politician by preference, and the genial acquaintance of everybody in the little town by occupation, he was sitting on the veranda, overlooking Nahant's very casual main street when an AMERICAN reporter found him to ask about his recent encounter with the Great Senator Lodge.

Two doors away was a big sign, "Daniel G. Finnerty, contractor and general jobbing." Then came a little cafe, and next Mr. Finnerty's attractive green cottage with striped awning at the windows, and under the awnings, Mr. Finnerty playing with his dog, Admiral Togo.

"Well, you see it was just this way," he resumed, turning back to his chair, which he has placed, facing on the village street rather than on the silent water. "Senator Lodge came up to put last night after the meeting was over, and he said to me himself, that it was a victory for me.

"The new committee that's been appointed has got to begin all over again. I don't suppose it will use the particular plans that I submitted, but it has got to use my principles of having a thoroughly fireproof building.

"Victory? Why should I say it is victory to march seventy-five citizens into a town meeting, to a public meeting, proclaiming what they want and not afraid to say it in the very town where anybody and everybody except me is afraid to say his own name?

"What am I? I am an independent. I don't belong to any party. I do the best man for the place. I have been living down here in this little town for over forty years. I have come here every Summer for thirty-four years, and for the last seven years I've been in Winter and Summer. Yes, I guess I know just about everybody, Winter and Summer people and all. And everybody knows Finnerty. And I guess I am pretty well known down here.

"Boss? What? Me? Why, bless your heart, no, I'm not the boss down here. I'm an insurgent. I'm trying to down the boss. That's just the trouble, we have too much boss here. This town has been machine ridden for forty years, I know it, and that's as long as I've been here. And the only thing I am down here to accomplish, I was elected mayor one year and a half ago, and this old nation of an Admiral Togo, who is a thoroughbred Airedale, by the way, was prevented at the time by a friend of mine in Brockline. If you're going to put that in the paper, you better say something about the Admiral, because he is a very important member of the family, ain't you, you young jackanapes?" turning to the dog here, is a thoroughbred, too, but he is an old fellow now—pretty old, too, and he makes such a show of himself as the Admiral."

NICKERSON SAYS BEATTIE CALM WIFE WAS SLAIN AS TRIAL NEARS

Raymond C. Nickerson, the husband of Mrs. Lilly C. Nickerson, who is in Seattle, Wash., awaiting trial on a charge of killing his wife, arrived in Boston yesterday morning on the Joy Line steamer, Georgia, en route from Providence to New York on July 20, was in Boston today and while asserting that his wife was the victim of foul play added to the mystery of her tragic death by declaring she had started for New York without his knowledge and that he was greatly surprised when he learned that she was on her way to visit him.

Mr. Nickerson was at his Jamaica Plain home to get the belongings of his wife. He asserted his positive belief that his wife did not kill herself. His statement that his wife's visit was a surprise to him contradicts the statement made by his step-father, Edwin Thrasher, who stated that his wife had asked Mrs. Nickerson to visit her.

It is believed that Mrs. Nickerson was on her way to New York to inform the husband to return to her home of her friends had even gone so far as to say she had threatened her husband if he did not return.

Nickerson left Boston today for New York. Before going he said:

"My wife did not commit suicide. I am perfectly sure of that. She was not that kind of a woman.

"Her visit to New York was a surprise to me. I did not know that she was coming. She had not written to me that she was coming and the first I knew about it was when I heard that she had disappeared from the steamer.

"It became known today that Mrs. Nickerson did not mean to pay a prolonged visit to New York. She meant to go to New York Thursday night and return Friday night.

"What was the reason for Mrs. Nickerson's visit to New York at the time—a visit of which she had not acquainted her husband?

"I had another row her off on the train. She said to me: 'Send me a postal and I'll get it for you.' I'll be back Saturday."

Simple Home Remedy For Wrinkled Faces

(From Fashion Monthly.)

Thousands of women are spending fortunes in their frantic efforts to remove the signs of premature age from their faces. When in this state of mind a woman will spend almost any amount of money on worthless wrinkle removers, of which there are many.

If these women only knew it, the most effective remedy imaginable is a simple, harmless face wash which can be made up at home in less than a minute. They have only to get an ounce of powdered saxolite and half a pint of witch hazel at the drug store and mix the two. Apply this daily as a refreshing lotion. The effect is almost magical. Even after the first treatment a marked improvement is noticed and the face has a smug, firm feeling that is most pleasing.

PULPIT ATTACK ON ASTOR KEPT UP

Time for Harsh Words Now, Says the Rev. Dr. Richmond of Philadelphia.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—The following statement by the Rev. George Chalmers Richmond, D. D., rector of St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church of Philadelphia, was given out today:

I have no time to bother with regard to church etiquette with a street preacher like Whitman in the employ of a parish like Trinity. The real matter at issue is the attitude of all the Protestant churches in the United States in regard to this horrible and scandalous alliance, the forthcoming Astor-Force wedding.

The bishop of Albany, the Right Rev. William Croswell Doane, struck the keynote when he uttered his personal words of disapprobation. We all know his Episcopal attitude. Such a scandal as this needs just such a personal note struck, and struck severely, as Dr. Doane has done.

Bishop Mackay-Smith, my superior ecclesiastic, fails to strike as strong a note as does the bishop of Albany. Such a case as this demands dealing in personalities. When one is facing the devil he must strike and strike hard. Bishop Mackay-Smith says he knows Mr. Astor personally, and so dislikes to make a personal attack. All the more reason then that he should break that friendship if such a friendship exists.

Such a time as this demands hard and bitter words spoken in the cause of moral truth. It is no time for diplomacy or compromise, putting upon the canons of the church the reason for our action in criticising Mr. Astor. I criticise him, and shall such censure pass as a canonist or an ecclesiastic legalist, but as one who hates the very thought of a young girl of eighteen or twenty linking herself with such a creature as Astor.

Rev. Dr. George C. Richmond.

MINISTER WILL CONTINUE WITH ASTOR CRITICISMS

Such a time as this demands hard and bitter words spoken in the cause of moral truth. It is no time for diplomacy or compromise, putting upon the canons of the church the reason for our action in criticising Mr. Astor. I criticise him, and shall such censure pass as a canonist or an ecclesiastic legalist, but as one who hates the very thought of a young girl of eighteen or twenty linking herself with such a creature as Astor.

For Rigid Divorce Law.

From what the leading bishops of the Episcopal Church are saying, I feel that the canons must be changed, at least as a canon in our next general convention, will carry everything before them and will enact an absolute divorce law.

Bishop Greer of New York will approve of this. In fact, the supreme reason for his electing as coadjutor to Henry Codman Potter, eight years ago, was his position, known to be extreme at the time, regarding the divorce question. J. P. Morgan himself helped to bring about his election.

Bishop Lawrence, I have always thought, was a more liberal person upholding the law as it stands to-day. In this, however, I may be wrong. I have, personally, great admiration for Bishop Lawrence. He was the first bishop I consulted when I thought of entering the ministry of the Episcopal church. I met him in Boston, walked with him across the Common and always will remember his winning words when he told me I always would be welcome in the Episcopal church.

Astor and Trinity.

"Every mail to-day has brought me letters from clergymen all over the country. They all praise my attitude with regard to the coming Astor-Force calamity and express the hope that I will continue the crusade.

"The Astor-Force case presents itself to us for action now in the time, there fore, to let men see whether we really mean business or not. The trouble with the Episcopal Church has been that it was sound in the faith, but a little weak in performance. At the basis of this trouble lies the fact that Trinity Parish vestry, the first thing to do is to clear house in this position. As I recollect it, he is an "honored member" of that fraternal corporation. It behooves the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, the rector, now summering in Northeast Harbor, Maine, to call at once for his resignation.

John Jacob Astor seems to think that with all his money and his social position he has kept his sins hidden from public gaze. He is wrong. In the letters received by me to-day there is every indication that many of the writers have an intimate knowledge of the private life of the Astors. Some are willing to speak to some of the happenings which have taken place on board the yacht. One of these letters comes from Brooklyn, the home of several of the sailors formerly employed on the yacht. There are things in this letter that want to be published. It is apparent from these letters that John Jacob Astor career lends for the good opinion of his subordinates.

Stands With Bishop Doane.

People in Philadelphia to-day are weeping over pontifical high mass celebrated, the Rev. Dr. Philip Mercer Rhinelander, thinks of this Astor case. The Rhinelander and Astor families in past years have been very intimate. I have replied: "Dr. Rhinelander, I feel you takes the position of Bishop Doane of Albany."

From the account of my career in the ministry, appearing in the newspapers, the inference might be drawn that I was the storm petrel of the Episcopal Church. This is not the case.

My first pastoral work in the ministry of this church that I love was as the personal associate to the late Rt. Rev. Frederick Dan Huntington, who for thirty-five years the first Bishop of Central New York. It was as my colleague and for three years I lived with him day by day, acting as his personal amanuensis, traveling with him through his diocese from Watertown on the north to Binghamton on the south, preaching at confirmations as his request and doing missionary work which he entrusted to me. While I was with him I was the personal associate to the late Rt. Rev. Frederick Dan Huntington, who for thirty-five years the first Bishop of Central New York. It was as my colleague and for three years I lived with him day by day, acting as his personal amanuensis, traveling with him through his diocese from Watertown on the north to Binghamton on the south, preaching at confirmations as his request and doing missionary work which he entrusted to me. While I was with him I was the personal assistant and a few months before his death accepted an appointment as assistant minister in the Church of Holy Trinity in New York city. It was then Bishop Huntington, who felt at the close of 1893 that his long years of labor before I went to New York, he placed in my hands a letter which I have by me, which I value these words:

"The only fault I have to find with you, Richmond, is that you have been too hard a worker and I want to see your future before you in the church. If your work in New York proves to be what your son's has been I shall rejoice with you as a credit to the love which it takes to stowed on you."

Bishop's View of Roosevelt.

Bishop Huntington was my ideal of a bishop. He was a great moral fighter. He preached the gospel of an applied Christianity. Early in his episcopate he delivered a Lenten course of sermons in St. Paul's Cathedral, Syracuse, in which he inveighed against the wrong use of wealth. In this respect he was a forerunner of Roosevelt, with whom, however, he disagreed in many respects, thinking him too precocious and forward.

At once the bishop was waited on by some of the wealthy laymen of his diocese, who remonstrated over the preaching of some of his utterances. They said that if the bishop continued in preaching against the evil use of wealth it would cause money for hospitals, schools and other institutions which the new bishop's diocese sadly needed. They hoped he would desist. As a result of this fearless light and teaching in this respect I got an inspiration for all my future, and was never afraid to preach personal economy. Neither am I.

My course as a preacher at Stamford, Ct. at the aristocratic St. Johns Church brought the latter contact with great wealth. A few of them were auto owners, snobbish, conceited, one or two typical of the Astor variety. I found an evening congregation when I went there of about thirty-five, and the last sermon I preached was to a congregation of about fifteen hundred. I supposed my preaching was responsible for the gentle Christians of that New York suburb.

Public Honors in Stamford.

In December, 1900, the Ella of Stamford honored me with an invitation to give the memorial address at the casino at their annual service. I received a splendid reception from some of the leading citizens of the city, and it was in this address that I gave expression to my condemnation of the rascality of James Hazen Hyde, who had just then fled the country.

This address was reported throughout the country, and was warmly received except by certain wealthy members of St. John's vestry, one of whom, General H. W. Shiddy, was particularly stroke, and almost lost his health. I knew not what had come. I resigned, to take effect in February of the next year and before that time came I was called to Rochester. The very night before my ordination was announced, the Mayor of the city, the Hon. Homer S. Cummings, sent me a letter of invitation to give the annual address before the Chamber of Commerce in Stamford. This address since has been published in pamphlet form.

In Rochester I made the friendship of the Rev. Algernon Sidney Crapsey, the distinguished rector of St. Andrew's parish, who was just about to be prosecuted for heresy. I did not uphold Dr. Crapsey's heresy, but I did espouse the cause of free speech. At the basis of this trial I found treachery, deceit and hatred. Bishop Walker thought me to stop and friendship with Dr. Crapsey. I told the bishop that I should pay no attention to his admonitions, as he had no business to dictate to me in my friendships.

Anti-Oil Trust Sermons.

I also preached a series of sermons on theological progress and quite a striking feature of these sermons were our real socialistic sermons, one of which was entitled, referring to the officers of the Standard Oil Trust. At once Bishop Walker asked me to meet him at the Genesee House, and when I was seated beside him he put his arm around my shoulders and said: "Now in his eyes brought me to stop my course of sermons for, said he, "I have had trouble with the people here, Richmond, are a quiet folk and have always a good deal going before you came. I have had trouble with Crapsey and I want no more of that here." I replied: "I will do the best I can, bishop," and left him. I then continued to preach as the Holy Spirit moved me.

The next year the convention of the Trinitarian Theistic, the burlesque house in the centre of the city, offered me the free use of his house for a series of sermons on Wednesday noon. I accepted the offer, contrary to the wishes of Bishop Walker. "For," said he, "how can you reconcile your priestly garments by preaching in such a sinful place?"

JUST A FEW MINUTES TO SHAMPOO THIS WAY

"Today fewer women than ever before depend on the hair-dresser for shampooing," writes Mrs. Mae Martyn, in the Los Angeles Times, "and the reason for this," she continues, "is because of the almost general use of the egg shampoo, which is simple and dandruff. After rinsing, the scalp is sweet and clean, while the hair dries very quickly and is left soft, fluffy and easy to do up. So little time and labor are required with cantharadine that shampooing is a positive delight."

Our high grade merchandise, our up-to date styles and our extreme low prices form a combination that simply cannot be equalled. We believe that if an article is worth full price at the beginning of the season it is worth only half-price in the middle of a season. Our prices average one half or less, while many reductions elsewhere are only one-quarter or one third.

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

LANGFORD WINS BOUT IN FIFTH

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Sam Langford, the colored heavyweight, from Boston, proved himself one of the most formidable ring gladiators of the age and at the same time disposed of one of the nation's many "White Hopes" when he met Jim Smith in less than five rounds in the windup before the Fairmount A. C. last night. Langford scored a tremendous knockout, though the Bronx boy was on his feet when the end came. Referee Joe Ialted boothis time after Smith had taken a count, from a terrific right uppercut to the jaw, for fear that the white man might be fatally peeler ring generalship and punishing power.

The end came shortly after the beginning of the fifth round. Up to that time the "tar baby" had always maintained a comfortable lead, though he had not won a host of admirers by his gameness in the face of his more experienced rival's superior ring generalship and punishing power.

Sam had gone to his corner after the fourth round somewhat worried looking because of the fact that he could not shake drop from any one of a dozen clean-cut blows that had landed on his jaw and chin. He had been careful before, but now he was more particularly so.

Smith adopted the deliberation for four and opened at Sam like a mad bull. Jim planted a right to the body and another under the belt and then shook his left back to the mouth. But these blows did not disturb the composure of the Boston lad, who was all the time measuring his man.

Smith fell into a clinch and as he broke Langford stepped back, measured him and sent a terrific right uppercut to the jaw. The blow fairly sent Smith off his feet and he fell to the ropes all in a heap. The fallen fellow was game, however, and at the count of "nine" staggered on to his opponent and resumed the fight.

But the eyes that looked vacantly in every direction were glazed and the end soon afterwards before Langford had a chance to send over another right for which he was all set.

Many thought at first that Langford was not trying his hardest. Sam did a lot of missing with both hands in the first two rounds, though he didn't use the right a great deal till the third. It is possible—any probable—that the accuracy of his aim was a ruse to draw Smith out of his shell.

In the first round Smith put two hard rights to Langford's jaw and sent Sam's head with a straight left. In the second Langford countered with the left to the chin repeatedly, staggering Smith with one of these lefts, which was followed by a hard right to the mouth. The third round was a continuation of the second, Langford sending the Bronx boy reeling and telling blows. Smith started the fourth in whirlwind style, but a right to the chin soon stopped his rally. Then Langford swung a terrific right, which fell short a bit, but which, nevertheless, laid open his adversary's left eye. A left to the head forced Smith to the cover of a clinch, and Langford was literally pounding his man's kidneys at the bell.

A record crowd was on hand to witness the bout and show its appreciation for the new regime in boxing here. Tex Rickard, who framed the bill to license boxing under proper jurisdiction, was at the ringside. When his presence was announced he was tendered a tremendous ovation. Every available inch of seating capacity and standing room was occupied by fight lovers, and hundreds of disappointed fans were turned away at the doors.

LONDON CRITICS SCORED B. WELLS

By ED. W. SMITH.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—They're so peeved in London over the proposed match between Jack Johnson and Billy Boulger like Wells, the ex-soldier boy, that they are quite needless themselves. The critics who are against the match and they are many to be applied it is body—are raising and roughest spelling to Wells to keep him from ever having to pass the white affair on and soak.

But Wells, with his eye in sight, for he's a game boy, takes the sinking of his young life, doesn't seem to be in shaping the Tongan song with great frequency in the face of all the unsavory appetite criticism and abuse, and he is going to do some convinced that the proper thing for him to do is to go ahead with the contract for he'll know, he are already signed up.

To make matters worse, the critics do not appear to be satisfied with the choice of the deal at all and do not even know who the promoters are, Jimmy White is the only one that seems to be fair and they do not even know anything he could. Mr. White says that he is not responsible for the match with him and that it is the understanding that Johnson is going guaranteed fact that Johnson is going guaranteed $30,000 for his end, which is a big one.

While claims that the men will train in public at an early date and that the big and considerable money will be derived from this source are made, the critics declare that will make the match pay, even the gate receipts are expected to reach the limit of the price figures.

The match, by the way, is to be fought in London early next month, and he defended during the last week in September. Wells's manager is in London and he has signed up for the engagement.

If you don't think that critics are not under their collars just take a start at some of the appended paragraphs that are taken at random out of the latest London papers.

There is something pathetically humorous in the spectacle of a man who a few months ago was sent to a physical culture expert to develop his muscles being pitted against a man who is probably the greatest fighter the world has known.

Probably there will be some clever preliminary work for Johnson, as is most a good sportsman, and is prone to make it appear that his opponent is not much better than he was when he it Bombardier Wells; for anyone since thinks the ex-Britisher to be has a chance, then his reputation for good sense and intelligence received a mighty shattering.

It is absurd to even imagine that a young soldier, who has had only a few professional fights, can be a match for Johnson in a contest of skill. Pat Donovan's fluke save earned a rest. They are solid with the lugs again because they succeeded in getting much, better than an even break with the referee during the West. Even if they had dropped the entire series to Cleveland, their triumph over Detroit's Tigers would not have been forgotten.

Stop Athletics Wild Career.

They are about to set out on a journey that will make or break them. If they can stop the mad career of the Athletics and then secure a split or better in the West, it will be comparatively easy for them to finish in third position. But if they fall down in Philadelphia and suffer disaster on Western fields, they will have to do a lot of hustling to win a place in the first division at the end.

Every one is hoping that Heinie Wagner and Steve Yerkes will be able to resume operations before the team has been long away from home. It seems a shame that the infield combination, which was working so smoothly until Heinie was put at the time, when victories count for so much.

However, nobody can accuse Pat's team of being lucky this year. Just about misfortune is merely one of many. If the Red Sox had allowed themselves to become disheartened over the ill treatment received from fate, they would now be challenging the Browns for last place.

Eddie Cicotte is still on deck to pay roll and will remain a Sock until Detroit, or some other club, comes along with a decent trade proposition. It is possible that the Cicotte-Wambsganss will be closed when the team reaches Detroit.

Jennings Did a Little Balking.

President Taylor thought it would be fixed up before the Tigers left Boston, but President Navin said he would have to secure Hugh Jennings's permission, and Hugh evidently did a little balking.

Joe Wood, who was picked by the Naps by Monday's game, will probably open against the Athletics. Connie Mack is likely to send out Eddie Plank in every big game, and the battle ought to be a tough one, provided Joe Wood's arm is O. K. Pape, Collins and Killifer will be called on for a lot of work this trip. The last named isn't asked to start very often, but he certainly is there as a finisher.

The Red Sox will be in the West the last day of August. The Athletics will pay their last 1911 visit to Boston then and the Yanks will follow them here.

ST. PATRICK'S T. A. L. S., HOLD BIG FIELD DAY

A great card of athletic events has been arranged for the grand picnic and field day of the St. Patrick's Total Abstinence and Literary Society, to be held on the Locust Street Grounds, Dorchester, on August 19. Entries are already coming in and some of the best athletes in town will be entered.

Six events, the 100-yard dash, 440 and 880-yard runs, one-mile run, running high jump and 16-pound shot put, will be run off. All of the events are open to registered athletes and sanctioned by the N. A. A. U. Waltham gold watches will go for first prizes, gold emblem fobs for second and silk umbrellas for third. Entries close August 16. Address John Namara, No. 4 Valentine street, Roxbury.

LOWELL PLAYERS ON INJURED LIST

LOWELL, Aug. 10.—Moulton, secondbaseman of the Lowells, is out of the game temporarily.

To fill his place until he recovers from injury to one of his legs Manager Grey has engaged Edmond Wildes, now playing in Woonsocket, R. I., in the Rhode Island League. He played at Lowell at the opening of the season this year for a short time. Boultes also has a bad finger, and Henderson and Wolfgang will be played at third to give him a rest.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

MORE HARM THAN GOOD

Mind your eye, for by and by you'll need glasses more and more; do nothing rash, but save your cash at 167 Washington St., Boston, for glasses from the Public often say "one needs glasses" but those who take advantage of the opportunity to have their eyes tested and suit the children when their eyes trouble them. Avoid further expenses, the day do now hath. Use good, and why charge $2 or $3 more than Wilson will for the same goods. Oculist Wilson from sunday. A skilled optician is employed. Don't be misled. Prescriptions accurately filled. Any broken lens, glasses repaired while you wait; ask us to have your watch repaired; open evenings.

Double Legal Stamps will be given with every purchase mornings, until 12 o'clock noon, at Wolf's, "My Clothier," corner Hanover and Portland streets.

BOTH BASEBALL TEAMS LAY OFF

By R. W. LARDNER.

Nothing to do till to-morrow. This applies to the Red Sox and Rustlers and also to the gentlemanly reporters and fans. The Sox will do a bit of pleasuring before their train departs for Philadelphia but they won't get any real tough work until they line up against Connie Mack's world beaters at Shibe Park to-morrow afternoon.

The schedule doesn't often give Boston an off day. However, this is one, and the chances are that everybody concerned is glad of it. Pat Donovan's flash save earned a rest. PITTSBURG NOW LEADS LEAGUE

The leadership of the National League fell to the Pittsburgs yesterday. This is the first time this season that the world's champions have touched the top rung.

The defeatment of Chicago from first place is the result of a remarkable string of victories by Pittsburg, including one of ten innings over Philadelphia yesterday, aided by the defeat of Chicago by New York. The combination gives Pittsburg first place by one point.

$1500 Worth of Information For 50c

Each of the L. C. S. Handbooks for Working Men, Business Men, Contractors and Mechanics, contains not less than one thousand pages—some of them 600 pages. There is not a page that does not contain information worth at least $5.00. Therefore these books contain at least $1,000. Each of these books is worth approximately $1,000. Many practical, difficult problems are instantly solved that cost thousands of dollars and years of time to work out. The price of each of the L. C. S. Handbooks is only 50c. There are special books for

ELECTRICIANS
TELEPHONE ENGINEERS
MACHINISTS
PLUMBERS OR FITTERS
MARINERS
OFFICE WORKERS
BOOKKEEPERS
STENOGRAPHERS
and for all branches of the
BUILDING TRADES.

CRACK RIDERS IN BIKE RACES

A four-cornered one hour motor paced race is the card offered by Manager "Nat" Butler of the Revere Cycle Track for Saturday. Elmer Collins, George Wiley, Percy Lawrence and Carmen will be the competitors in one of the best races of the year. One hour races have always made a hit with beach track fans, and with such a quartet of riders in action there is sure to be something doing all the time.

The motor followers who are competing in this year's one hour races are riding on a trophy offered to the rider who at the end of the season has the greatest number of points to his credit. Each race counts for points in the standing of the riders.

Collins is now leading with 10 points to his credit, Bedell, Lawrence with 7, Wiley has 6, while Carmen is low man with 5. Saturday's race may upset the standing.

The amateur riders will line up in a half mile handicap and a new race which is called the winding out. The pro riders will be seen in a one mile handicap and a five mile open.

BAY VIEWS TO PLAY SO. BOSTON RED SOX

The South Boston baseball fans will have a chance to see a great game next Saturday afternoon on the Bay View Grounds, when the strong Bay View team play the South Boston Red Sox. Both these teams are playing Sunday, one from the semi-professional class and both have been putting up a great article of ball. The Bay Views have defeated the greater part of the good teams in this city for the past few seasons and the Red Sox have done the same, Buckley Ford and Nick Kelly will do the umpiring and they are considered the most capable of arbitrators outside of organized baseball.

UMPIRE'S DECISION STANDS ON THE PLAY

Sporting Editor, Boston AMERICAN:

With a runner on second, the pitcher makes a wild pitch. The runner tries to score. The ball is picked up by a spectator and returned to the catcher. The runner is tagged between third and home and the umpire declares him out. The umpire did not see the spectator return the ball to the catcher and declared the runner out on the theory that the game handled the ball. Could you decide on appeal to the presidents of the league or the league directors, or would it have to stand?

The umpire's decision must stand because it is based on his judgment and not on an interpretation of the rules.

WANT SATURDAY GAMES.

The Central A. C. of Somerville would like to arrange games for next Saturday, away from home. Address Charles Magin, 319 Medford st., Somerville, telephone 2195 Somerville.

The Sterling team has open dates August 12 and 19 away from home, and is open to play any reasonable team. Address, Sterling Baseball team, 83 South street, Boston; telephone 1193 Oxford.

The Bennett A. A. of Somerville desires a game of ball away from home for next Saturday; address C. Hutchins, No. 102 Glen street; telephone 2564 S. Somerville.

HARVARD MEN TELL OF DEFEAT

Captain Reginald C. Foster and Herbert Jacques, Jr., of the Harvard-Yale track team which was defeated in July in England by the Cambridge-Oxford athletes, arrived in Boston to-day on the Arabic. They lay the defeat of the American team to the hot weather encountered in England, which practically took the stamina out of the American athletes, preventing Heat Was Stifling.

"The team left the United States with every member in perfect condition," said Jacques. "But climatic conditions were entirely different when we reached England. The heat was stifling. Twice a day the team went to a sporting park for practice in intense heat, and when the time for the meet arrived none of the men was in condition to do their best.

"As was expected our team won all the dashes and field events, excepting the shot-put—and this was won by an American. Our sprinters are far superior to any they have in England. On the other hand, the Britons have never had any trouble in defeating the distance men—two miles and over—of this country. This has been conclusively proved at the Olympic games and at all international competitions.

"The methods of training in the two countries are vastly different. In England the men during training are permitted to drink beer and smoke. They do not take their training seriously. It has always been a characteristic of American athletes to prepare for meets with thoroughness and determination.

Another thing the English overlook is specialization. They prefer long distances. Instead of selecting one or two events, for which they are best fitted, and preparing for that alone, our cousins across the sea enter everything. It is not uncommon to see a man in England enter both the dashes and distance runs.

Britone Fine Sportsmen.

"I must say that the Britons are fine sportsmen. They created us royally. They were very congenial. On the second day of our arrival a big banquet was arranged which the men from the four universities attended. The finest spirit prevailed. We had a dandy time.

"Perhaps the people on this side wondered why it was that Kolley did not compete in the 440-yard dash, which he was expected to win without difficulty. An unfortunate accident the day before the race put him out of the running. On the way to the park, just before practice, he slipped down the stairs and strained an ankle."

ORGANIZE BASEBALL LEAGUE IN EVERETT

The fans of Everett, Chelsea and Revere will have their fill of baseball for the season. This season, an interscity league has been formed and double headers will be played on the Everett High School field. On Saturday the Everett team meets the Revere Athletics A. C. and the Chelsea Nest of Owls meets the Malden Athletics. Considerable interest is being manifested in the league and every town is desirous of having the honor of being champions.

MORRIS-FLYNN BOUT HAS BEEN POSTPONED

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 10.—Carl Morris, Oklahoma's "white hope," says that he would not fight Jim Flynn on Labor Day, as was intended that the fight had been called off. B. F. Ufer, Morris' manager, left the city last night. Morris and his trainer, Con Hubbard, will go to New York next week.

"We will train for a month in New York," said Morris. "The fight probably will be staged about the middle of September."

EVENTS ADDED TO BIG REGATTA

The New England Amateur Rowing Association will hold its annual regatta on the Charles River on Labor Day, September 4, at 9 in the forenoon. In addition to the regular regatta events a race for fence club fours and a single scull race open to scullers who have never won a senior event will be in the program.

This action was taken at a meeting of the executive committee of the association held last evening at the Union Boat Club, over which Dr. George H. Magrath, president of the N. E. A. A., presided.

The adding of the single scull event, which will be known as the "Association singles," is a step that will undoubtedly be appreciated by scullers who have never quite reached the stage of proficiency to realize them to win a senior race. The addition of the "Association singles" will not in any way interfere with the regular senior single scull race, but it is intended to give those scullers who have done so much for rowing an opportunity of settling their little quarrels on their own caliber.

James F. Fox of the St. Alphonsus A. A., who for more than a score of years has been chairman of the regatta committee, last night declined to act in that capacity any longer. Pressure of business, he said, was responsible for his declining the honor of serving longer, and James H. Phelan of the Bradford Boat Club was chosen chairman of the regatta committee in his stead.

The other members of the committee are H. H. Holton of the Boston Intercollegiate Rowing Association, Joseph Greer of the Columbian B. A., Frederick Brodbeck of the Dedham B. C., John J. Corrigan of the East Boston B. C., John E. McCarthur of the Jeffries Point B. A., A. G. Herreshoff of M. I. T., William J. Donovan of the Shawmut B. C., James F. Fox of the St. Alphonsus A. A., J. J. Lill, Jr., of St. Joseph's A. A., Dr. J. E. Hawes of the Union B. C. and F. A. Nichols of the Brookline Gymnasium Association.

The entries of the regatta will close Wednesday, August 30, and the regatta committee will pass upon the entries the following evening at the Union Boat Club house.

The Sport's Soliloquy

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

SAY, what's wrong with the Red Sox?
They were going great for awhile.
Fielding like shadows in Summer
And hitting the ball a mile.
Now they are running backward,
Hipe for regrets and flowers.
Draw me a beer, kind waiter,
And draw me a Gloom, Tom Powers!

SAY, what's the matter with Wood?
Is there something wrong with his wing?
They say he was state in April,
But they say that every Spring.
Monday he lost to the Naps,
While the teardrops fell in showers.
Draw me a beer, kind waiter,
And draw me a Gloom, Tom Powers!

SAY, what's the matter with racing?
Rhode Island was kind and true,
But oh, that awful Governor!
What can a poor sport do?
Here in the dark I'm sulking,
Counting the leaden hours.
Draw me a beer, kind waiter,
And draw me a Gloom, Tom Powers!

KID SHEA AND TERRY MARTIN GO TO DRAW

AUGUSTA, Me., Aug. 16.—Kid Shea of Hallowell and Terry Martin of Manchester fought twelve indecisive rounds in City Hall before 1,500. Martin displayed better generalship and was always dangerous, but Shea carried the fight to him in every round and did the major part of the work. Both men were cut about the face at the close, but going strong.

The first six rounds were clearly Shea's. He did all the work and Martin took a lot of punishment. The second six rounds were Martin's, if the ability to take care of himself counts for anything, as he checked most of Shea's leads, slightly away or clinched at every rush. On the offensive he divided honors with his opponent.

Kid Dennis of Winslow slipped one over on Young Boldue of Winslow in the third of what was scheduled to be a four-round bout and put Boldue to sleep. Up to that time Boldue had the best of the argument. The semi-final between Ollie Kalloch of Shirley and Kid Dixon of Montreal proved to be a comedy bout. Dixon was fat and slow, and Kalloch was equally slow, though apparently in good condition. In the fifth Kalloch limbered up a little and for a time threatened to lay the Canadian away, but Dixon hung on by ducking and running away.

OLD-TIMERS HIT BY BOXING BILL

By KNOCKOUT.

That new boxing bill over in New York will not be a good thing for those old-timers who are on the verge of "coming back." No, sir, the Boxing Commission is not going to let the public get stung, and furthermore they are not going to let a youngster bit an old man and run the chances of anything serious happening.

Jack O'Brien, Kid McCoy, Peter Maher, Young Corbett, Sandy Ferguson, Al Kublik, Terry McGovern, Bob Armstrong, Jimmy Britt and a couple of more "has beens" will be politely informed that they can do the "come-back" stunt in some State outside of New York.

It is also a sure thing, according to a New York paper, that the proposed bout that is scheduled for next Tuesday between Jack O'Brien and Sam Langford will be called off. The commission has looked into that bout, and they have decided that if Sammy really tries to put O'Brien away he can do it and likely seriously injure the former champ.

It is expected that a bout between O'Brien and Kid McCoy would get by, as no harm could result from such a bout.

The commission will also see that no champion, or other boxer, is pitted against an easy mark. That is the right kind of action to show.

Joe Rivers and Johnny Kilbane will come together in a non-featherweight championship bout out on the Coast on Labor Day. Rivers, one of the most successful boxers who has been sprung for some time, thinks that he will win over already his license suspended, whereas Kilbane says Attel for the title of the world. Kilbane has gone through a lot of bars in the 122-pound class with ease and his followers think that Kilbane is not the right stone to make him stumble, but Johnny has also had some great fights and he is a good boy.

Tom Andrews, the dope book man from Milwaukee, comes across with a suggestion as to the middleweight class. He suggests that Billy Papke, Klaus, Thomson, Kelly and other contenders for the title should get together and vote on their weight limit. If the majority should favor 158 pounds, that would settle the argument. Billy has been talking a lot about having the weight 160 pounds, weighing in at 2 o'clock, but several of the other men in that class have put in a kick. It is generally conceded by the fans that Papke would be better boxing in that class if the weight should be changed to 160 pounds, weighing in the afternoon. In those two rounds, and a few hours make a whole lot of difference in the boxer's condition, and better condition means better fights and less chances of seeing a good all worn out from reducing and hardly able to put up the best kind of a mill.

Jim Dolan, the old-time fighter of Providence, has discovered a new "white hope" in Jim, in his place on Orange street, is still telling of the wonderful performances of Tom Farrell, the sturdy young Irishman, who, without training, has walked off with several records, unofficially, at the local jump and the shot-put. Farrell, who is about 185 pounds, is lithe and athletic, and has a walloping right hand punch, so says Tom Lally, so will lay Jack Johnson how if he is ever given an opportunity to land it in the right place.

Dolan elicked Farrell up at a recent meeting down the Providence river, when the Irish youth demonstrated his all-round athletic ability. Inquiry developed the fact that Farrell had beaten the glove more than once, and now Dolan, who at one time was near heavyweight honors in the old John L. Sullivan days, says he has a wonder who, with proper training, will make the list of "white hopes" look like thirty cents. Dolan has written to New York fight managers with the intention of starting Farrell along the road to the championship.

Twelve-pound shot put—Won by Joe Green; distance 37ft. 9in.; second, Hardwick; 3d, Hendon; 4th, Neill; Keenan, 5th. Fourth Prize, 10th.

DEMOCRATS IN A DAY OF SPORT

Track and field athletes will turn out in force for the big field day and barbecue of the Democratic City Committee of Boston to be held at Calef-nian Grove, September 9.

Francis X. McGrath, for many years official handicapper for the New England A. A. A., has charge of the games and entries are pouring in at rate that insures keen competition for every event.

The list of prizes that will be awarded the winners comprise the richest trophies that have been hung up for events of this kind for some time. The events for which entries are now being received include a 100-yard dash, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, mile run, two-mile run, three-mile run and five-mile run, in addition to the field events.

The assurances of entries from more than a majority of the national champions of the Amateur Athletic Association of America have already been received.

Entries can be filed or mailed to Director Francis X. McGrath at the rooms of the Democratic City Committee, No. 15 Faneuil Hall Exchange street.

MATTY BALDWIN ONLY GETS DRAW

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 16.—Young Sailor of Indianapolis and Matty Baldwin of Boston boxed 10 rounds to a draw at the Auditorium, the length of the scrap being too short for either to obtain much of an advantage. With the exception of the ninth round, which was Sailor's by a shade, the sessions were about even and contained mostly of infighting.

In the ninth Sailor landed left and right repeatedly on the stomach in the clinches and a less rugged opponent would probably have been counted out, but Baldwin was far from "all in" and boxed on even terms in the tenth. Both men had a good defence and both came out of the mill unmarked.

Standing of the clubs in ordinary series:

Starfish Giants	10	7	3	.800
Tumperners	10	5	5	.500
Wild Cats	10	4	6	.400
Wasps	10	3	7	.300

The score is not worth mentioning, neither is the game that was pulled off yesterday between the Wild Cats and the Wasps. Suffice it to say that the Wild Cats won.

"Eaglebeak" Spruder, the Wasps' pitcher, is responsible for this score going. He is up to his old tricks again. Some how or other just when he is needed the most he is around the least.

Besides putting his team on the blink by having to go home in the first inning of yesterday's game, he disappointed the fans, and there is no telling what will happen as an outcome.

The public is not going to stand for "Eaglebeak's" capers all the time. Yesterday was the day that he was supposed to show what he could do in the way of striking out "Whizzlewhiz," the champion swatsman of the Wild Cats. A whole lot of the fans paid admission into the grounds just to see the battle between these two stars.

"Whizzlewhiz" did not get a chance to face "Eaglebeak" at all.

As we have previously stated, "Eaglebeak" was called home in the first inning by his kid sister to take a whipping for purloining a piece of pie out of the kitchen pantry.

The "George Washington" kidnaping case still has Rattles, the detective who is working on it, up in the air. He claims to have a few new clews about the turtle and begged us to print his picture in to-day's paper.

Outside of that, "George Washington" may be dead for all we know. However, Rattles has promised us a rattling good story for to-morrow's paper, so we will give him another chance to make good before cunning him.

TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT

MISS MAUNSELL tossed her grey head and nodded stiffly that she knew nothing about such things. But the girl, in her opinion, was designing minx. She had the look of it—and being that pleased with herself! No doubt Frenchwomen were mostly hussies, and above their places, with their fussed-up hair and their sunwound-in waists.

"Lady Hereward thought there had been a flirtation, anyhow," remarked Gaylor.

"I absolutely must work," snapped the spinster. "I don't call it decent. But it's no news to me that her ladyship thought the worst of Mr. Barr; for I heard her give him her opinion of him in plain words. I told you I was obliged to listen to a conversation between those two the day Mr. Barr resigned; and that conversation was certainly the cause of his doing so."

"I was going to ask if you knew what terms they were on. Now, if you tell me a few more things of this sort, I may really be able to save you from being summoned as a witness."

"I don't mind repeating as much as I can remember of that conversation," said the old woman, "though I can't recall the exact words. But to explain how I overheard, I must mention that Mr. Barr's house was no more than a cottage, and an inconvenient old cottage, at that. My room was over his sitting and dining-room, and my only way of getting down stairs was to pass through it. A little narrow stairs led down directly into that room, and close by was the kitchen door.

Bound to Hear

"Any one talking in a fairly loud voice down stairs, I was bound to hear, up above, if I happened to be there; though mumbling would not reach my ears. Well, after I washed the luncheon things, I used generally to go to my room for a bit of a rest, if there was time, and to get dressed; for you see, Mr. Barr seldom or never had people coming to see him at that time.

"One day, I'd got off my frock and slipped into a dressing-gown, for a ten minutes' snooze before changing into my afternoon dress, when I heard Mr. Barr come in from out of doors, bringing somebody with him. There was a woman's voice, but as I'd never heard her speak before, I shouldn't have known it was Lady Hereward, if he hadn't called her by name.

"'I have come here to see you because I want to talk to you alone,' says she. Those were the first words I caught, and he answered: 'Come indoors, then, Lady Hereward.' I thought of making it known to them that I was in my room; but it would have been awkward for Mr. Barr, and as he ought to have remembered how it was my habit to be there at that time of day—it was about three o'clock—I said to myself it wasn't likely there'd be any talk between them which they'd mind my hearing. It would only be business that Lady Hereward wanted to discuss, thinks I, with her husband's steward.

"In a few minutes I know better; but it was too late then. If it would have been awkward calling out at first, it would have been ten times as bad then, for every one concerned.

"'Mr. Barr, I want you to tell me about her,' says Mr. Barr in an angry, where my maid is,' says her ladyship sharp and short, mentioning the French girl's name, which I can't pronounce.

"'Diane,' suggested the dissective, who was well primed in every detail of the case, and it was then she told Mr. Barr exactly what she thought of him. She'd been against Sir Ian engaging him as steward, or having him about the place in any capacity. It was 'most unsuitable,' to her idea, and she'd warned her husband. And to that Mr. says Lady Hereward. And to that Mr. said she, that it would turn out badly.

"'You know very well where she is!' says Lady Hereward. 'You know very well where she is!' surprised voice.

"'I can tell you nothing whatever about her,' says Mr. Barr in an angry, keeping silence threw her ladyship into a rage, and it was then she told Mr. Barr what she thought of him. She'd been against Sir Ian engaging him as steward, or having him about the place in any capacity. It was 'most unsuitable,' to her idea, and she'd warned her husband. And to that Mr. says Lady Hereward. And to that Mr. said she, that it would turn out badly.

"'But he would have his way, out of mistaken kindness of heart,' and now are the consequences! 'Bad blood will out, like murder!' said her ladyship. 'Those words I do remember. And little did I dream that she'd be murdered herself!' Mr. Barr took that as an insult to his mother, and he just about ordered her ladyship out of the house. 'I'm your husband's servant,' said he, 'but this is my house while I'm in his employ, and no one shall defame my dead mother under my roof while it's still mine.'"

"'Did Lady Hereward go when he said that?' inquired the detective, greatly interested in this story, which he could have heard from no other living person than Ian Barr's housekeeper, save Ian Barr himself.

"Not she. She stopped where she was, and insulted him more. 'Put me out by force, if you choose,' says she. 'You'd be equal to that, I dare say; but unless you do, I won't go till I've finished telling you what I think. You're a villain,' says her ladyship. 'You made that poor French girl love you. Then you turned to another and very likely drove her to death.'

"'I deny it absolutely,' said Mr. Barr. 'It is immoral that I should be obliged to deny it. Does Sir Ian believe this against me?'

"'I will make him believe,' says my lady. And then she was beginning something about Miss Verney, a young person Mr. Barr was engaged to marry. But that was too much for him. 'Stop' he shouted. 'I won't stop!' cried her ladyship. 'Very well, then, I'll go, and leave you to babble calumnies to the four walls,' says Mr. Barr—or words like those. And he must have gone instantly, for I didn't hear his voice again.

The Corset---The Girdle of Gaul

By Nell Brinkley

Copyright, 1911, by the National News Association

[Reproduced by Permission from the August Number of "Good Housekeeping" Magazine]

How the Gallo-Roman Women, Who Had No Corsets, Preserved Health, Beauty and Grace

Although Fond of Magnificent Jewels and Garments, They Attired Themselves Simply and Sensibly

IN this picture by Miss Brinkley, which has been reproduced by permission from the August number of "Good Housekeeping" magazine, a woman of ancient Gaul is shown holding her babe aloft that the right may gladden the eyes of her warrior-husband returning from the wars.

Miss Brinkley's picture shows the woman to be a striking example of health and beauty. Her supple form is unhampered by any cramping, binding corset, and yet she shows as much grace of figure as any woman could possible desire.

The metal belts worn by the Gallo-Roman women were of rugged splendor, which harmonized splendidly with their wild beauty. Their garments were of the simplest, as the picture shows, yet were as warmth-giving as one could wish, and as attractive in their way as the extravagant modes indulged in to-day.

The woman in the picture has an immense black bearskin thrown around her, the broad girdle holding it in place. On her feet are sandal-like shoes, which allow a freedom of foot-movement denied to our latter-day sisters. You see no high heels or pointed toes in those sandals, and it is probable that corns were unknown in those days.

Although a mother, her form and face are like a girl's, and no care-worn lines appear on her brow to indicate the worry that modern women place upon themselves with thoughts of dress and fashion.

The girdles worn by these women were made of gold plates, magnificently carved and cunningly wrought. The girdle served as a support in contrast to the corset, which cramps and forces lungs and heart out of place.

The dresses of these women of Gaul were of narrow cut and molded to the body, but, unlike the freakish bobble, they allowed a free movement of the limbs While these women delighted in gorgeous displays of jewels and ornaments, they wore nothing in a manner to hamper the body or injure their health.

At those times the women did not glory in wasp-like waists, pulling them in to ridiculous dimensions and allowing hips and busts to spread out immoderately. Instead, they did their best to preserve the natural lines and contour of the body which they sensibly considered to be the acme of bodily perfection.

Strong and sturdy were the women of Gaul, with eyes sparkling vigor and health. How these women would have laughed at the vise-like corset, the bubble skirt and other atrocities of to-day's fashions!

It is a well-known fact that the women of Gaul were used to hardships of a physical kind that made them almost equal to the men of that day. Often they themselves would take part in the wars, and in defending their homes and children against invading soldiers they fought with the fury and physical strength of she-lions.

The woman in the picture represents a common type of Gallo-Roman females. Nearly all of them were tall, broad and graceful. The women, as a general rule, were of light complexion and, when not aroused to anger, of sociable disposition.

In the many contests of later imperial times, the women were often seen, and because of their great strength and suppleness of body were able to wield heavy swords and endure hardships of the field that would kill the ordinary woman of this century.

The women of Gaul never allowed themselves to wear tight clothing or anything that would impede blood circulation. Being still imbued with somewhat savage instinct, they often allowed almost all of the bust to be exposed to the air. This, while indelicate, saved them from colds and kindred ills which our women are prone to.

The girdle, after a time, became symbolical of a woman's status. At one time in history widows indicated their position by wearing a knotted girdle. Married women sometimes wore belts adorned with gold and precious stones.

The Summer girl's belt of to-day is directly descended from the girdle as worn by the women of Gaul, with the difference, however, that "Miss 1911" wears a corset under the belt, which the Gallo-Roman woman did not do.

The absence of the corset gave the women of Gaul greater physical power, natural gracefulness, almost uninterrupted health, and therefore long life. It also made them strong mothers and helped them to rear healthy, vigorous children.

In fact, in those days a weakling was despised instead of pitied, and the parents of such a child looked down upon. These cases were rare, however, for, with plenty of outdoor exercise, free movement of body and the accompanying freedom of worry that goes with good health, the women for the most part were happy and strong.

Physicians of to-day would undoubtedly indorse the mode of dress assumed by the Gallo-Roman woman as being ideal as far as health is concerned. Many famous doctors have declared that the corset is the cause of a majority of woman's ills, tending, as it does, to cramp the vital organs and retard the circulation.

Frail women arrived with the corset for ancient days, which, it must be confessed, was a much greater instrument of torture than that worn now.

Miss Brinkley's pictures in "Good Housekeeping" portray every style of corset word from the time of Cleopatra on. The Egyptian girdle of silk, and the infamous busk of the time of Madame de Montespan, are shown, making striking contrasts to the corsets of modern times.

The history of the corset also makes it apparent that the days of healthy, long-lived women were those when no corset was worn or even thought of.

It is also easy to see how the feminine form was gradually transformed. In the corsetless age women held themselves erect, and naturally assumed an athletic pose when standing at ease. The chin was held high, the shoulders thrown back and the chest forward. This was mainly because the lungs were left unobstructed and allowed to expand to their fullest extent when any undue exertion was being undergone.

With the corset came round shoulders, shallow chests and an absence of the robust appearance shown by the women of the time of Gaul.

This picture by Miss Brinkley is but one of several that accompany a highly interesting article in the August number of "Good Housekeeping" magazine, from which it is, by permission, reproduced. In the article accompanying the pictures the history of the corset is given in detail, and is written in most interesting and clever style.

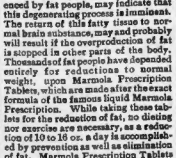
DANGERS OF FAT
HOW FAT AFFECTS THE BRAIN



Just how fat affects and finally destroys the brain, is not exactly known; however, degeneration and final collapse of brain tissue, due to this cause, is of frequent occurrence. Head pains, and head heaviness, which are often experienced by fat people, may indicate that this degenerating process is imminent. The return of this fatty tissue to normal brain substance, may and probably will result if the overproduction of fat is stopped in other parts of the body. Thousands of fat people have depended entirely for reductions to normal weight, upon Marmola Prescription Tablets, which are made after the exact formula of the famous liquid Marmola Prescription. While taking these tablets for the reduction of fat, no dieting nor exercise are necessary, as a reduction of 10 to 16 oz. a day is accomplished by prevention as well as elimination of fat. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold at all druggists or the Marmola Co., 74 Monroe Ave., Detroit, Mich., at the uniform price of 75c for a large case. They remove the fat already formed, prevent its reforming, clear the complexion and tone up the entire system.

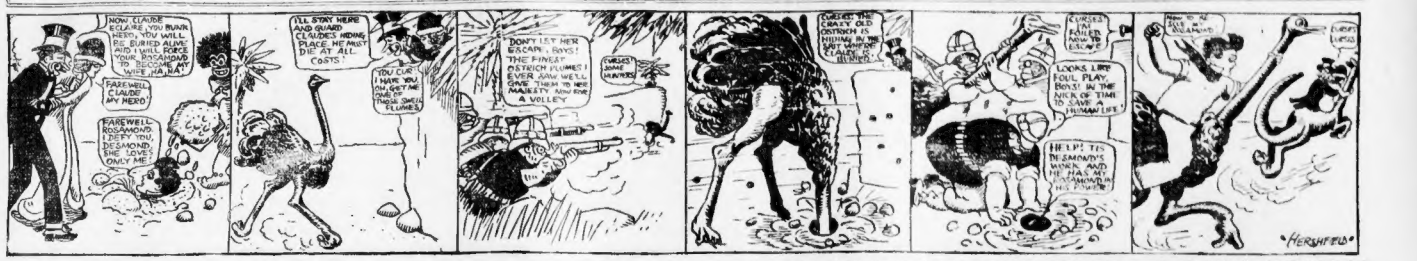
Desperate Desmond

Copyright, 1911, by the National News Association

A Continued Picture Drama of Love and Hate, with a Thrill in Its Every Picture



NOW, CLAUDE, DEAR, YOU SWAR HERE, YOU WILL BE BURIED ALIVE AND I WILL FORCE YOUR RIVAL DESMOND TO BECOME MY HUSBAND
FAREWELL CLAUDE MY HERO!
FAREWELL ROSAMOND I DEFY YOU DESMOND, THE LOVE I HAVE ONLY ME
I'LL STAY HERE AND GUARD CLAUDES HIDING PLACE. HE MUST DIE AT ALL COSTS!
YOU CUR I HATE YOU FOR THE SAKE OF THE GIRL I LOVE
DON'T LET HER ESCAPE, BOYS! THOSE FINE OSTRICH PLUMES I EVER SAW WE'LL GIVE THEM TO HER MAJESTY NOW FOR A VOLLEY
UNLESS SOME MIRACLE HAPPENS
CURSES! THE CRAZY OLD FOOL IS HIDING IN THE VERY PLACE CLAUDE IS!
CURSES I'VE GOT TO HOW TO ESCAPE!
LOOKS LIKE FOUL PLAY, BOYS! IN THE NICK OF TIME IS SOME A HUMAN LIFE
HE LIFTS THE DESDEMONA'S NECK AND HE IS AT A DISADVANTAGE
HERSHFIELD

What a terrible moment! Another shocking thrill of earth and Claude Eclaire, hero, is forever buried from the sight of his Rosamond. As the grinning Wild Man is about to hide the hero from view, Claude's words are of defiance to Desmond, villain, and of love to Rosamond, fairest of sex. Constancy is a rare virtue. Claude has every virtue there is.

The deed is did; Claude is immured in his living tomb, and meanwhile, with ghoulish emotion, remains to watch the spot, so that nothing shall disturb the ground that now hems him in. Desmond has gone beyond the possibility of help. At this point a large ostrich strides along majestically, but and Rosamond, fired of always wearing one hat, sighs for one of its plumes.

Hunters sight the splendid bird and, anxious to obtain its valuable feathers, they cautiously stalk the ostrich until they get within range. Then, all together, they let fly a volley at the unsuspecting bird. However, too much excitement in an attempt to accomplish a thing is often fatal to getting results, and in this case, as we shall see, not a shot took effect.

Although not a bullet touches the ostrich, the foolish bird, nevertheless, accidentally by sticking its head under the sand. Because it cannot see its foes, the ostrich thinks its foes cannot see it, either, and this many humans act in the same way. They will not look danger in the face, the only way to meet and conquer it. So after all we can hardly blame the ostrich.

And the folly of the ostrich results in good. It has made a hole in the earth above Claude, and the keen-eared hunters hear his feeble cries for help. It is the work of a moment for the brave fellows to dig the hero free, and as soon as he is rescued they give him the ostrich, the rarest creature that roams the desert, as a reward to aid him in Desmond's pursuit.

"Hershfield" cries desperate Desmond as with Rosamond he vaults upon a swift dromedary and urges it across the plain. Claude spurs the ostrich after it, and the great race for love and revenge is on. Can the runner beat the jumper? Today answers the artist will let us know, who was also shown foemen and Philip.

Wobble Folk

By ADA PATTERSON

DO you know any wobble folk?

They are human irritants, exasperating thorns that grow in the path of people who know what they want, and who keep on wanting it. The wobble folk don't know what they want and don't know that they don't know.

Wobble folk wear out their furniture and themselves moving from one town to another and from one part of town to another because they are never sure whether this last habitation is quite what they wanted, after all.

Wobble folk are constantly, it must be admitted with some help from their employers, leaving one job for another, or to wait for another. The wobble man's motto is: "Bad thing to stay in one job too long. They don't appreciate you."

Wobble persons blow warm and cold in their affections. Love pales into friendship and friendship into indifference. They can never give you a reason for it. Sufficient is it for them that it is so.

Can't Make Up Minds

Wobblers of one degree put off till tomorrow what ought to be done today because they are incapable of making up their minds. Wobblers of a different degree make up their minds quickly enough, but change it to-morrow and change it again next day.

Mrs. Wobbler is the despair and madness of assistants in the stores, the women who work in the department stores, because she buys a blue gown on Monday and comes back and exchanges it for a red one on Tuesday. There is no flaw to find in the blue one. It is as blue, as fashionable, of a quality as durable to-day as yesterday. It is in every respect what it had been represented to be. The change was not in the purchase, but in the purchaser.

Mr. Wobbler is a man who on a larger scale does exactly what Mrs. Wobbler does —makes up his and reproduces it. He is the chief trouble source of the real estate companies. He looks at lots or acreage or farm or house, pays "something down to clinch the bargain," and the sale is made. At least it would be made had the purchaser been anyone else than Mr. Wobbler. When the time comes to make a second payment Mr. Wobbler is sick of his bargain. He can't give any reason. Wobblers never can. He is just sick and he doesn't want to pay another cent. If he were a woman he would say, with an air of triumphant finality, "So there!" But he is a man, and the law assumes that since his address is not an insane asylum he is responsible for his acts.

Causes Much Misery

Wobble folk are, in short, tender plants that would be strong and fine products, if it were possible to place about them the trouble breaks to stop the force of every gust of anger, every chilling blast of fear, every breeze of caprice. In a uniform temperature, like that preserved for infants in incubators, they would thrive. But, alas! this is earth, not heaven, and no such immunized mental state is possible.

Wobbling causes most of the misery of life, yet it isn't the wobblers who are made miserable by it. It is their families, their friends, and the unfortunates who are in business or social or professional association with them.

There are but two hopes for the wobbler. Stanch folk reaching forth and steadying the rare and splendid art of standing fast, or, grained trailing, he may learn to like the rare and splendid art of standing fast.

Meat Turnovers

A METHOD of using up portions of cold meat, which is rather less trouble than croquettes and to which the opprobrium of hash does not attach, is in the form of turnovers.

Here is the simple formula:

Grind the meat fine and season appetizingly. Roll out a nice piecrust made of one-half cup of lard, one cup of flour, and enough ice water to render it smooth, with a pinch of salt.

Cut the thinly rolled paste into four-inch squares, allowing two of these for each diner, unless appetites are unusually frugal.

Put a tablespoonful of meat on each square. Fold, making a three-cornered turnover, and fry in deep fat.

The Difference

GEORGE ADE, the brilliant American satirist, delights in satirizing marriage, and at a recent address at a banquet said:

"Take it from me, a bachelor, the only difference between war and matrimony is that in one fighting takes place during the engagement and in the other some time afterward."

America's Famous Marrying Trio.

2—Princess Chimay.

STILL again he marvelled at her directness of purpose and movement, at her unsophisticating frankness of outlook. It implied, he felt, a courage seldom demanded of met with in the immured and solid stered walls of a modern woman's world.

"I thought it could be done this morning," she went on hurriedly, put the tons so low that he had to stoop a little to catch her words. "Ganley lost his wireless and I was ready and waiting the moment he was away I let myself into his room."

She stopped to smile at his start of astonishment.

"I had won over my stewardess," she went on. "A few dollars completed the conquest and made everything so much easier. She even found a pass-key that fitted. I could see it was dangerous, and I had very little time. But I failed. The receipt was not there."

"But you can't do this sort of thing," McKinnon expostulated. He remembered his mother's speech of hers: "Life and its small things that count in war—and this is war."

"Isn't it rather late for going back over that ground?" she was saying.

"But this sort of thing involves too much risk! It's too public to me."

"I looked through everything, as far as I could," the girl at his side went on, not heeding his protest. "I could find no trace of the receipt."

"Of course not! He shows the value he puts on it by carrying it about on his person, in his wallet."

Guns as Laundry

"But there was something else I did find out," she said, lowering her voice; and again he was struck by the sure of sheer vigor that seemed always to float and cling about her.

"It's the fact that eight mountain guns are to be shipped out of Mobile this week, involved and crated as steam-laundry equipment. They are Hotchkiss rapid fire guns, breech-loading, and with fixed ammunition. Those are the guns that are to be landed somewhere in northern Colombia. They can be taken apart, piece by piece, and carried up through the hills on burros."

"And he had the coolness to send out a wireless about that equipment!" commented McKinnon. The woman, with a warning look, motioned for him to speak more quietly.

"My second discovery was even more important. It began with what seems to be a letter. From one of De Brigard's generals. They are still afraid of some counter movement to seize their carnvilge shipment.

"I mean they are worrying about the very ammunition on this ship, the cart ridges in the ship boxes you spoke about. As for the rest, they have failed to get the commander a certain track motor from the Consolidated Fruit Concern. They are to send it and take it from the round house just north of Puerto Lecombia."

"What kind of track motor?" broke in the thoughtful-eyed operator.

"It's a specially built, sixty-horsepower Birmingham motor, belonging to the railway department of the fruit concern. I can remember when it was first imported, a year ago. The new railway construction engineers have been using it instead of the old mule-drawn trucks for inspecting the ore road extensions and the narrow gauge branch lines that have been run out into the Parroto plantations.

The Track Motor.

"You see, it's so light in weight that six or eight men can lift it about on the track; they can reverse it without a turntable. De Brigard's men intend to run this motor out on the railway along the pier, at night, and keep it hidden in the fruit concern's weigh-scales shed, not forty feet from where the Laminian will be sure to dock.

"Then, as far as I can make out, the slag boxes are to be quietly dropped over the side and piled up to the motor's tonnage. Then it is to be hurried out along the railway track to Cocoanut Hill, where everything is to be stored in the power house until the funds distributes the supplies to De Brigard's men."

"But what power house is this?"

"I mean the electric light power house just outside the town."

"This is worth knowing!" said McKinnon his leaping thought already struggling to bridge the vicissitudes of the future.

"But this isn't the business that's blocking our way," he continued, waving him. "The first thing we must do is to recover our lost ground. We have to get back this receipt that ties you down to Ganley."

"But even for that we have to wait our chance."

"Why not make the chance?"

"How make it?"

"Ganley is by nature afraid of every message that comes into your wireless room. He insists on receiving anything that might betray him. Think of a way to get him away from there, and I'll send for him—hurriedly call him up to your room, perhaps. What was that you said about a wireless that could be hidden in the mast you have?"

"The more fact that we possess this secret about which he has no suspicion, as you said, above food precautions to hold it to be. But if he's caught on to guard in that way he might forget. You might easily enough keep him there with you for an hour or fifteen minutes."

"You mean the chances are that he'll simply to throw on anything that's nearest, like a blanket or a bathrobe, if it's late enough?"

"Yes."

"Then there's the captain!" objected McKinnon. "There's the scene we went through last night.

Would Search Cabin

"Then wait until the captain has gone to his cabin for the night. The later it is when you call Ganley the more likely he is be waiting. The moment he has left his cabin, locked or unlocked, I can be there making my search.

McKinnon looked down at her puzzled, not by her proposal, but by the sheer fact that she could make it. He began to feel how kindred and companionable love for the casually adventurous licked them together, he began to realize that, for all her, she was not without her youthful and full-blooded relish for the hazard of any time guns that was worth its candle.

"Suppose Ganley suspects something?"

"He can suspect nothing if we only do our part of it in the right way," admonished the youthful intrigante before him. She lives in daily dread that one may receive messages about the Lecombian uprising, or his connection with it

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

Daysey's Mother Discusses How To Obtain Perfection

"THIS day shall be better than my birthday; then I became an actual; now I am invited into the science of the real."

"That," said Mrs. Lysander John Appleton, "is from Emerson. By this selection of reading, she is carried toward the point whose he is unable to live his own life, to be master of environment, and master of his own destiny."

When Lysander John stopped pulling off his shoes to ask what all that meant, his wife tossed her head in scorn and left the room.

The next afternoon, at a meeting of the How to Attain the Perfection in Area Club, she unbended from her customary, calm, cool dignity to let forth a wail.

"How can a woman," she asked heaving with emotion, "live up to the highest and noblest within her, and study and aspire to attain the heights of the real, when her husband sits around in his stocking feet? Are there any sisters present who had hoped, as I hoped, to find the said before her in the development of her practically limitless, and who have had that hope crushed by an environment embracing a man who sits in his stocking feet?"

A dead silence followed Mrs. Appleton's appeal for sympathy. On lighter and less vital subjects the sisterhood would have all buzzed at once; but she had touched a chord too deep, too painful, to find relief in heedless expression. Over the faces of the younger sisters there swept a look of outraged anger, like that which comes with a battle fought and lost, and the faces of the older sisters assumed an expression of resignation.

It was some time before any one spoke, and then all tried to talk at once, as if the gates having opened it was no time now to restrain the flood. The younger women talked in angry tones, and the older women counseled patience; one older one was so determined to make the younger women look on the bright side that she told of the sad tale of a woman who was always nagging her husband because he sat around without his shoes on, and how she was punished by an accident that befell him in which he had both feet cut off, and how she died of remorse.

There was a long discussion, during which the older and younger women finally reached an agreement, and adopted this resolution:

"The mind and body are given us to be brought to the highest state of efficiency. If we are to lift ourselves and the race to the full level of intelligent, forceful action and capacity for realizing the beauty and full completeness of existence and we must learn to overcome by Higher Thought the hampering influence of a man sitting around in his stocking feet."

Why, yes, that will be very nice," Warren said, with enthusiasm.

"I asked Frank too, but he wasn't certain about it. However, he'll look after himself all right."

"Oh, then your father and mother are coming as your guests?"

"Why, no, dear, I was just asking."

"You mean you're thinking of the expense. That's it, don't it?"

Gray Hair

Easy to Restore Natural Color to Your Hair by Simple Method.

Science has just been finding out some of the many scientific reasons for hair-coloring that "restores" hair to its natural color.

Recently a scientific compound called Mary T. Goldman's Hair Restorer, which is absolutely harmless, restores natural color to gray hair by a simple treatment that is easy, safe and sure. It is not a dye. This scientific treatment is entirely to the Queen City Hair Restorer a liquid preparation that makes any desired shade from the lightest blonde to the darkest black and finally leaves the hair soft, fluffy, not sticky and does not rub off.

Mary T. Goldman's Hair Restorer is instantaneous in its effect, and requires but one application to restore the natural color of your hair. It is two sizes, one and one-half and two dollars, and may be had from any druggist in the United States, or direct from the Mary T. Goldman Chemical Company, 1 Goldman Building, St. Paul, Minn. Mary T. Goldman's Hair Restorer is guaranteed to do all that is claimed for it, and druggists throughout the country.

The best hairdressers use it and sell it to their patrons.

WHAT I WENT THROUGH

Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Natick, Mass.—"I cannot express what I went through during the change of life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold, I had creepy sensations, and I could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I also had a tumor. I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it a real wonderful miracle in me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish my letter."—Mrs. NAOMAN B. GREATON, 41 N. Main Street, Natick, Mass.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

MOTOR TRUCK TEST BEING RUN

By J. C. KERRISON.

Favored by perfect weather and road conditions the Chicago-Detroit 2-ton rated commercial motor vehicle, 750-mile reliability test under the auspices of the Chicago Evening American, driven every alternate day by the same test team which made trucks have been subjected in this country. After the first day's run of ninety-five miles all the trucks arrived at South Bend on schedule time without serious trouble.

The few penalties imposed were not of sufficient importance to enter into the computation of haulage costs, manufacturers believe the contest will demonstrate beyond doubt the superiority of motors over the horse in commercial service.

Two-ton trucks, manufactured by eighteen different manufacturers, are in the contest.

Automobilists driving to and from the Cape, from Middleboro, Brockton and Boston, as well as Providence and other Rhode Island places, are invited to view the situation of the state of affairs that exists at the draw at the bridge over the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad between South Wareham and Fremont stations. The road is so crooked there that the slanting situation should be taken into reference to the highway makes it the most dangerous place on the Upper Cape section.

There have been several minor accidents to automobilists at this bridge, and the one last Sunday, when a large automobile plunged through the draw, demonstrated over the embankment to the tracks below has made this automobile people sit up and take notice.

It is probable that the Highway Commission will be appealed to. The men from the railroad have been trying to get together with the state and resident hall at either approach to the bridge, but owing to extremely dangerous, especially on Sundays when there are so many automobiles driving back and forth to the Cape resorts.

Brockton city officials believe the best way to conduct the city's affairs is by means of automobiles that is the traffic and Mayor Harry C. Howard is an ardent automobilist and drives a high-powered Hudson roadster. The fire department has as its Pope-Hartford, while Chief Harry L. Marston has a Boston model Locos for his use.

In the police department there are Park and Chief E. M. Fears. William H. Thorne, superintendent of streets, has a large truck. Superintendent of Buildings Elmer Lewis has an Overland, and Water Commissioner Horace Kingman has a Hudson touring car. A Cadillac and a Winton completed the water department's vehicles.

The officials who find it necessary to travel about the city a great deal find the auto cheaper, better and quicker than the horse.

The only car to come through the final examination of the sixteen cars which endured the road testing of the annual reliability run of the Wisconsin State Automobile Association with a perfect score was the Warren-30.

The officials who penalized every other car to the run for leaky water connections, loose nuts, loose cap screws, or other points could find no cause for imposing a penalty on the Warren-30, and even though the final test in perfect shape, he had picked up fourteen points to road penalties, and has been subjected to a severe hammering lately, was above the extreme lowest penalties of the contest.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

STOCKS WEAK AGAIN TO-DAY

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—The full force of the Government's adverse crop report hit the market to-day, causing it to open weak, with prices selling off. St. Paul, leading and Rock Island suffered the heaviest losses, Rock Island dropping three points upon heavy selling.

Speculative sentiment arising from the crop outlook was responsible for the bulk of the selling which set in immediately after the opening. Many issues sold down a point, following the opening. Pennsylvania opened with the first sale at 120¾, or above last night's close but selling immediately developed, which carried it downward nearly a full point.

Those which ordinarily would not be influenced by crop conditions went to sympathy with the balance of the list and Southern Pacific and Union Pacific after opening unchanged moved fractional lower.

Steel was adversely affected and lost in the first few sales, later going still lower. Amalgamated Copper was one of the few stocks opening higher, its gain being ¼. The curb market opened weak. Americans in London reflected a heavy tone due as a result of the crop report issued in Washington yesterday. Canadian Pacific, which has been subjected to rather hammering lately, was above the extreme lowest profits of the day.

Yesterday's average of sixteen stocks was 123⅞, which was just about midway between the low of July, 1910 and the highest of the same year, which was early in January.

$ $ $

According to the figures issued by the government there will be nearly a billion bushels less of grain harvested this year than last year.

$ $ $

In the face of the crop report, the demand by shop men of the various railroads of the United States for higher wages becomes interesting and intricate. The crop report makes it certain that the cost of living will be higher for the next twelve months and that the volume of business done in the country will not be materially greater than at present.

$ $ $

At prevailing prices the shortage in grains means a loss of about $700,000,000; the hay shortage $2,000,000, and the potatoes $90,000,000 at the very least. Thus, there is an indicated shortage in farm values of at least $1,000,000,000. Of course, a great part of this money value will be made up to the farmers by the higher prices which the public will be compelled to pay for food next year as a result of these short crops. The government made arbitrary allowances for deterioration from past years, but making impossible to figure the volume of crops absolutely from percentages.

$ $ $

It would not be correct to say that hard times are at hand, but it will become necessary for the people to understand the fact that the railroad shopmen will have to pay more for living will make them more insistent for an increase of wages, but the fact that the railroads are now going they will not earn enough to pay this increase of wages without reducing dividends will make them more firm in forming the demands of the men.

$ $ $

The financial world is thankful to George W. Perkins for helping the Steel Trust unfree to discover the Constitution of the United States. This is the most real discovery made by the committee, although it is trying to find out if the prominent politician who sought a campaign contribution from the Steel Trust in vain was Theodore Roosevelt. The mind taken by Perkins is justified by the decision of the Supreme Court, which sustained E. H. Harriman in refusing to answer personal questions, even though Archbishop Ireland and Thomas Fortune Ryan were vitally interested.

$ $ $

Attempts of the American Tobacco Company protective committee to compel the minority bondholders to accept new securities, as agreed upon by the majority of bondholders, will create serious trouble if persisted in. The only fair way to adjust the security holders of the American Tobacco Company will be to issue a new bond in exchange for the preferred stock and bonds in exchange for the common stock. The terms of exchange should be such as will be equitable, but any bondholder must have the privilege of accepting either the new stock offered to him or pay in cash.

$ $ $

Though it is possible that considerable improvement may be recorded in all the grain crops between now and the harvest time, it looks at present as if the actual yields of all cereals will not reach average proportions. The chief hope for a substantial basis for the much-talked-of prosperity in business therefore lies at present in the future handling of the bumper cotton crop which is already under way.

$ $ $

In spite of all the vagaries shown by prices in the stock market the banking element still clings to the belief that before the end of the year distinct betterment will be seen in all directions. That is not to say, however, that there may not be some further declines seen in the list.

EDISON LOOKS OVER COMMONS

LONDON, Aug. 10.—On reaching London by motor Thomas A. Edison was met by his European agent, Sir Croydon Marks, M. P., who after dinner escorted him to the House of Commons. By the special order of Speaker Lowther Mr. Edison occupied a place in the Distinguished Strangers' Gallery, where he witnessed the scene, but could not hear the speeches made on the floor. The great American inventor was intensely curious about the personalities of the leaders on both sides. He declared that Arthur Balfour, the Unionist leader, Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George and Home Secretary Churchill all have strikingly intellectual heads.

Puzzled by Contest.

He said the whole fight between the two houses is inexplicable to him and he thought it strange that some sort of arbitration committee or board could not be assembled to settle it. Evidently Mr. Edison is not much of a politician.

He felt the heat greatly in the house and expressed surprise that some cooling invention has not been applied so that the members may work in comfort. When the cooling system in use was explained to him the waiter are played outside the windows and iced air is forced up through the floor matting on the floor. Edison opened his eyes in amazement, exclaiming incredulously:

"Well, do you tell me so? I could not have believed anything so stupid."

He was taken on the terrace, where he met several ministers and others seeking the refreshing night air.

There he met among many other big men of Great Britain Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George, who wished Mr. Edison would invent some plan for getting bills quickly through Parliament.

T. P. O'Connor was one of those who met Mr. Edison and afterward said:

Marvel at Simplicity.

"He is like a big, unsophisticated farmer, taking almost boyish interest in things familiar to ordinary men of the world. Indeed, he is like a great schoolboy asking questions and looking delightfully astonished with the most commonplace answers. The simplicity of genius was never before so remarkably illustrated in my experience."

Mr. Edison left here for a motor tour through France, avoiding Paris and toe large towns.

DOCK RIOTERS ARE QUELLED BY TROOPS

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Bread riots now threaten London as a result of the spreading strike of dockmen. Unless there is a settlement within forty-eight hours, which will allow the importation of food, the city will be face to face with starvation. Fifty thousand men are out to-day, with the prospect of an increase of this number by many more thousands. Strikers defied the police at Liverpool to-day and troops were called out to disperse mobs that threatened to wreck railroad property in the area. Street stands were overturned and hurled into the middle of the road by the strikers and their sympathizers and all street traffic came to a standstill.

ADVANCE GUARD OF C. T. TROOPS HERE

The advance guard of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union Regiment of Milkes-Barre, Pa., is to-day at work pitching 250 tents on the southern slopes of Castle Island, to accommodate the remainder of the regiment, which arrives to-morrow for the annual encampment and outing. There are twenty men here at present, under command of Lieutenant Thomas Whalen. Already the men are beginning to arrive and more than a hundred will reach here before noon to-morrow at 6 p. m. the main body of the campers will arrive. 500 strong.

JUDGE RICHARDSON IS GROWING WEAKER

OXFORD, N. H., Aug. 10.—The crisis in the illness of Justice James Bailey Richardson of the Massachusetts Superior Court is approaching, although the doctors do not expect it will be reached for a day or two. Judge Richardson's wife, his sister, Miss Kate Richardson, who lives in this village throughout the year, and James A. Richardson of Boston, a nephew, were at the bedside to-day. Judge Richardson is growing weaker.

U. S. IS ASKED TO AID RUSSIAN JEWS

BAAR, Switzerland, Aug. 10.—A movement to bring the United States to the aid of Jews in Russia is being advocated by the Zionists in session here and will probably be officially indorsed. The proposition considers a petition to the United States to abrogate the treaty now existing with Russia. Zionists believe if the United States champion the cause of the Jews they will prize them citizenship and passport rights as Russia now withheld and put an end to oppression.

TRIES HYPNOTISM AS CURE FOR BLINDNESS, CAN READ FINE PRINT

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Trested by hypnotism for an affection of the eyes that had made him totally blind for seven years, Ralph Swinerton, of No. 118 West Fortieth street, is now able to read fine print. He expects to be entirely cured within the next two weeks.

Swinerton's plight was due to atrophy of the optic nerve. His case had been given up as hopeless when Dr. Edward Fox began on experiment upon him with hypnotism.

COMMERCE MEN ON WAY TO PARIS

GENEVA, Aug. 10.—Stuffed to the brim with chocolates of varied manufacture and the dulcet strains from many samples of music boxes, which are the municipal pride of this city, the members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce European tour party are on their way to Paris.

All the Jerry that have been with the party since they left Boston are still on the job, but ordinary clown has been permitted to intrude his presence. With Paris as the last leg of the European itinerary, there doesn't seem to be a chance for gloom to get even a look in. While in this city the party gave especial attention to the port and its docks, the extensive electrical development due to the unlimited water power, the municipal water works, hydraulic power and lighting plants, the government-owned railroad and the public information bureau.

The Commerce party will remain in Paris until Wednesday, August 16, leaving at 9 p.m. for Cherbourg, from which port the delegation will sail on the North German Lloyd steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, due at New York August 23.

Fred J. McIsaac, who is making the tour of Europe with the Boston Chamber of Commerce party, will have a full page story of the doings of the Boston men in the Sunday AMERICAN.

PLEASURE YACHT HITS ROCK IN FOG

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 10.—The steam yacht Aurelius, owned by Abraham L. English of Philadelphia, left Portsmouth for Boston early this morning to determine the injuries sustained when she ran aground in the fog. She will be placed on a marine railway at Boston.

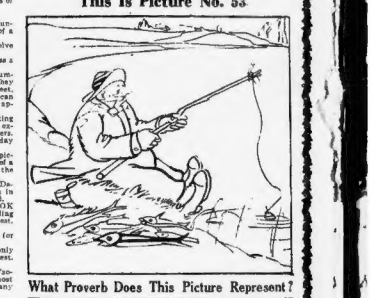
IN THE AMERICAN'S GREAT

Proverb Contest

SOLVE TO-DAY'S PICTURE!

This Is Picture No. 53



Here's a $2,500 Seashore Bungalow, with the compliments of the Boston American!

Don't care for it? Well, have a 1912 Metz 6-cylinder Runabout Automobile, or a Motor Boat, or a Piano, or any one of a thousand good things.

All you have to do is to enter the Proverb Contest and solve the puzzle pictures correctly.

Your reward will be in direct proportion to your success as a puzzle-solver.

The contest is open to everybody. You can get back numbers of the puzzle pictures that have already appeared. They are in stock at the Contest Department, 275 Devonshire Street, and are given out at the regular rates of the Boston American for the daily and Sunday papers in which they originally appeared. You may call for them or order by mail.

The back numbers include the saver blanks, and by getting a series to date you will have a set at the close of the contest, exactly like the sets obtained from the paper by the later starters.

Daily back numbers are 2c (plus return postage); Sunday back numbers are 5c (plus return postage).

No answers are to be sent in until the last of the puzzle pictures has been published. So there is absolutely no chance of a late starter being at any disadvantage in the awarding of the prizes.

Even after the last picture has appeared, the Contest Department will give all contestants ten days to two weeks in which to prepare their sets of solutions and get them entered.

New contestants will find the American's PROVERB BOOK very useful. It contains 3,000 proverbs, including nearly all that are represented by the puzzle pictures during the contest.

Copies may be had at the Contest Department.

The price of the PROVERB BOOK is 25 cents. It sent for by mail, send only 25 cents.

The American's PROVERB BOOKS are positively the only official and authoritative PROVERB BOOKS for this contest. Be sure you get the American's PROVERB BOOK.

Some persons have been mean enough to attempt to sell "solutions" of the puzzle pictures. These persons should be most religiously shunned. Only their "wares" contemptible have any more value than your own solutions of the puzzles.

They try to achieve the same end as the individual contestant tries, and there is no reason to believe that they have better success than you have. Some lists of dealers' "solutions" of some of the old pictures have come into the hands of the Contest Editor and they invariably contain a large percentage of errors.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS:

B. L. M.—It is necessary to write on the lines, either the pictures or the answer blanks printed in the American. You can write a set of answers on home-made coupons if you choose. The use of the American coupon is desirable, but not necessary.

T. L. S.—Yes, with this coupon your answer will be perfectly safe if you follow the form of the blank printed each day in the paper.

S. Harley—There must be only one answer on each answer slip, or one for each page of a book form.

Daniel L.—The name and address must appear on each individual answer.

C. B. L.—Different members of a family may win prizes.

L. C. D.—Only those are in doubt about.

B. L. F.—The official American PROVERB BOOK wording may be relied upon by contestants.

F. E. J.—No; you must make out additional sets to give additional answers.

C. C.—Get a book back and we will send a good one.

L. C.—You can get back numbers from the Contest Department, 275 Devonshire street.

CONTESTANTS, NOTICE!

Any contestant who finds that the pages of his or her PROVERB BOOK are incomplete, should go to whose book the proverbs do not run in alphabetical order, for such books will be exchanged daily to the Contest Department, 275 Devonshire Street, and a correct book will be forwarded.

CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST

THE BOSTON AMERICAN PROVERB CONTEST is a contest of skill and judgment. Prizes to the amount of $10,000 will be given absolutely free by the Boston American to the winners. Every one living in New England, irrespective of age, is eligible to enter the contest.

Each set of answers must contain only one answer to each picture printed. Each person is entitled to send in three complete sets of answers.

Answers to the puzzle pictures may be sent in writing in longhand either with pen or pencil, or may be written on the typewriter or may be printed in any manner to suit the fancy of the contestants.

Participation in any other contest now being run or which may be run by this paper will not debar any one from entering the contest.

Each contestant or any or all members of the family will be allowed to submit one, two or three sets of answers, but each set must contain only one answer to each picture. Each set will be considered separately, but no contestant can win more than one prize, even though he or she submits three sets which are absolutely barred from participating in this contest.

In case there are ties in any of the prizes offered, prizes will be awarded to the persons submitting the nearest correct solutions. In the case of a tie, award will be made on the basis of neatness and exact accuracy, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way, duplicate prizes will be awarded to the tying parties.

Do not send your answers now. Keep them from day to day and at the close of the contest arrange them in numerical order and then send them all in at one time.

Joseph Clary Was Caught by a Cave-In

And While They Were Working to Get Him Out They Fed Him on FRIED Chicken

Copyright, 1911, by American Journal Examiner

Young Joseph Clary, a zinc miner, was buried for a long time in a cave-in. At last a five-inch drill hole made it possible for him to be heard, although he could not be seen.

He stood up to his armpits in water and waited, plucky and cheerful, hoping that the rescuers would succeed in getting him out before the water could drown him.

Luckily he was rescued.

The reporters tell us that the plucky young miner was made happy by supplies of "fried chicken" sent down to him through the drill hole while he waited.

In spite of the tragic situation, and of the fact that Clary's digestion was undoubtedly equal to anything after a long fast, we must take this occasion to point out that FRIED chicken is an indigestible product of culinary ignorance.

Never eat anything fried if you can help it. Bake your foods, broil them or boil them—NEVER fry them.

Things that are fried are soaked in grease and the grease is cooked in. Those that eat fried things usually eat quickly. They swallow almost whole the lumps of greasy food. The gastric juice throws up its hands in horror at the task before it (if you are willing to assume that the gastric juice has hands).

In the case of very strong men who must work hard for many hours before the next meal it is sometimes assumed that something indigestible that "stays in the stomach," like salt pork or fried meat, is a good thing. But it is not a good thing.

Salt pork and fried meat make workingmen old at fifty when men properly fed are still young at seventy. Fried foods are at least five times as hard to digest as foods properly cooked.

Frying is usually done in poor households where time-saving and economy are the great considerations.

Every mother will find it in the long run more economical to give her children nothing fried.

If you will kindly try to remember this as long as you live it may be of value to you.

You may say, gentle reader, that advice against fried chicken is all very well, but that it ought not to be injected into the sad story of a miner struggling for his life.

Remember, however, that an article about fried food only would be ignored by many, whereas all will read about the miner up to his armpits in water.

Millions of lives would be lengthened or saved in this world if fried food were abolished. And that poor miner in danger would undoubtedly have been cheered to know that his predicament and his fried chicken had done something for humanity. Any man who wishes to impress an important truth upon the public must find his opportunity where he can.

The Lure of Civilization Sundered an Eskimo Love

During the Alaska Exposition an Eskimo family of six was imported from the regions of perpetual ice to hold forth in Seattle. Mr. S. Stockberger with Mrs. Stockberger and their four little Eskimos liked it so well that he bought a farm on a nearby island. But presently Mrs. Stockberger grew restless, and her husband thereupon traded his property for land in Missouri.

His wife then and there made it plain that she longed for her old diet of fish, for her sealskin dress and for ice and snow.

But the germ of civilization had entered the soul of Papa Stockberger and he departed south with the small Eskimos, while their mother sailed north to the Arctic Circle.

The call of the Igloo sounded clearer to Mrs. Stockberger [illegible] the call of the farmhouse.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

THE HABITUAL DRUNKARD
Editor AMERICAN:

The other day I was talking with a man who knew the man that shot and killed David Graham Phillips, and he told me that Goldsborough actually talked to certain people about how he was going at it to kill Phillips. But, of course, every one thought he was mildly "a little bit off," and paid no attention to his talk. Now if these same people had had this man's fellow taken into custody the life of a brilliant man might have been spared. However, no blame can be placed on any one who listened to Goldsborough's ravings.

But, getting down to the point of my story, I want to ask why would be the guilt of any one who calmly watched a man slowly kill himself and made no attempt to stop him. An artist whom I know, one of the foremost of all the pen-and-ink illustrators of the day, is surely committing suicide (and not so slowly) by drinking alcohol and whiskey. Some men I know have had him locked up in different sanitariums until he was sobered up enough to get out and get more strong drink. He has been on one long drunk from last September and at the rate he is going now I do not believe he will live another six months.

Could the charge of attempted suicide be made against the man, or would the Court laugh at one for making a charge like that? Why could not he be tried and sentenced to compulsory abstinence until he should be cured of his desire to kill himself?

Until the cause is removed I think that such cases as this should be taken care of by law and the victim of alcohol forcibly restrained, just the same as the law provides punishment for attempted suicide by taking chloroform or drowning, etc.

Knowing that you take a very broad-minded and wise view on the prohibition question, I come to you for advice on this particular case.

With best wishes for you and the good work you are doing.

A. B. CONKWRIGHT.

DOGS AND HUMAN NATURE
Editor AMERICAN:

I do not agree with "Te Editor" nor with "A. F." when they say that dogs are of no use. I hardly know how to express myself, and am handicapped by a scant education, so, if I don't make my point, it will not be because it is not well taken, but because of my inability to make it clear.

We people from the country have an idea that a dog is a fine barometer as regards a person's nature. Just as a baby will cry when some people come near it, so will a dog make his dislikes manifest, and the dog is usually right in sizing that person up as one who is cruel or not to be trusted.

If I wished to be disagreeable I'd say that I venture a guess that "J. V." and "Te Editor" have had dogs growl at 'em, hence their dislike for dogs. Another thing, you seldom hear of dogs developing rabies in the country. I think many of us would get as mad as the dogs if we were cooped up in a two by four yard or small kennel and never allowed to run as are the dogs in the city.

This, then is the only point wherein I agree with you. Dogs certainly should not be kept in the city! As for dogs howling all night, as per "J. V.," that's some fear being a fine remark. Perhaps they howl when he's around—and some others—that's what they are trained to do.

P. S. D.
10 Postoffice Square, Boston.

A WORD FOR PROHIBITION
Editor AMERICAN:

The people who are seriously interested in the prohibition movement have no money consideration in view. They believe that the more stringent the prohibition laws are the more decent and law abiding will the country be. There can be no question that the motive behind the prohibition movement is good, and only good—the sole desire being to do the most good to the greatest number of people.

Of course there will be violations of prohibition laws, as there are violations of all other laws. This we all know. Then why expect prohibition to prohibit absolutely? We do not expect the laws against other crimes to prohibit their commission.

Murder is committed daily, and yet the penalty is death, and so on with all crimes.

SOMEONE HAS STOLEN MY TENT! CAN YOU HELP ME RECOVER IT?
COME WATSO, LET US LOOK INTO THIS!
HERE IS WHERE IT STOOD. IT WAS SHELTERED BY THESE TWO LARGER TENTS.
GENTLY WATSO—THESE ROPES WERE CUT WITH A KNIFE!
RIPPED AWAY BY LAST NIGHT'S STORM!
EVIDENTLY STOLEN FOR THE CANVAS.
NO WATSO,—A THIEF WOULD NATURALLY TAKE ONE OF THE LARGER TENTS!
AH, DID YOU DROP THIS FISH HOOK?
NO, I NEVER FISHED IN MY LIFE!
STRANGE!
BY THE WAY— SHOW US WHERE THEY FISH HERE, IT MUST BE VERY HOT WORK IN THIS BLAZING SUN!
SO, MR. NERVO,— YOU APPROPRIATED THIS GENTLEMAN'S TENT!
YES, FISHING IN THE SUN GIVES ME A HEADACHE!— HE CAN CARRY HIS TENT BACK AS SOON AS I'M THROUGH!
ASTOUNDING!

Sherlocko the Monk, with his friend, Dr. Watso, is now a regular feature of the Sunday AMERICAN. Don't miss the funny detective work of Sherlocko in the Sunday AMERICAN.

Mr. White and His Attacks On the Governor

Mr. Norman White, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, appears to consider it a duty of his candidacy to attack Governor Foss wherever he finds him, whether the Governor is occupying an impregnable position or whether Mr. White is equipped for the attack.

His idea seems to be that he can acquire the approval of his fellow Republicans by becoming merely the noisiest opponent of Governor Foss, no matter how wide his shots may go of their mark. And, as in all cases where a man attempts to make noise do duty for accuracy, he hits some non-combatant.

A recent occurrence is a good illustration of Mr. White's characteristic methods.

In the AMERICAN of last Sunday Governor Foss declared that the Railroad Commission was a joke. Mr. White replied: "This is a remarkable statement in view of the fact that he has just taken the chairman of that commission and has offered him a judgeship on the Superior bench. He did this to make room for a political heeler to whom he doubtless will offer the vacant seat on the Railroad Commission."

There is no inconsistency between the Governor's opinion of the Railroad Commission and his appointment of Mr. Hall to the bench, for Mr. Hall's excellence made him a minority on the Railroad Commission.

Messrs. White and Bishop constitute the Railroad Commission. That these two gentlemen are jokes as Railroad Commissioners nobody will deny who knows the facts and has not profited by them.

The AMERICAN regretted the transfer of Mr. Hall from the commission to the bench, because when the Governor fills Mr. White's place Chairman Hall could add his experience to his new colleague's vote and the reorganization of the commission would thus have been completed.

But Mr. Hall's determination to resign made it necessary to put him on the bench, where he was willing to go, if the Governor wished to save him to the public service.

In this last attack of Mr. White upon Governor Foss, Mr. Frederick J. Macleod was a non-combatant, but he suffered the usual fate of the bystander when somebody is fighting recklessly. He was hit by a piece of impudence from Mr. White, for Mr. White referred to him when he said that the Governor had created a vacancy on the Railroad Commission in order to reward a "political heeler."

Such sheer, unprovoked insolence from a man of Mr. White's limitations to a man of Mr. Macleod's ability should not disturb Mr. Macleod.

As a gentleman, a scholar and a man who has been unusually successful in the important practical affairs he has undertaken, Mr. Macleod dwells an arrow's flight above any missile from Mr. White except words.

Mr. Macleod will do credit to the Governor, himself and the commission when he takes his place on the Railroad Commission.

The Money Getters

By MILES OVERHOLT

THE story has been often told of how a monarch brave and bold
Without compunction slaughtered men when he was shy of cash.
He'd set the axmen on to them, and when the ax had gone to them
He'd quickly pick their pockets and avoid financial crash.

They tell a different tale to-day: the trusts have got a better way—
And so they dodge the people's wrath by using grace and tact;
They do not take the poor folks' breath—they simply starve poor folks to death;
And when they lower prices they are lauded for the act.

And then you take the middleman (he doesn't pay the fiddleman),
The poor consumer is the guy who pays for all the tunes.
The middleman knows how we stand; he knows there's money in the land,
And so he doubles on his tracks and holds us up for prunes.

The retail merchant is no slouch; you never see him have a grouch;
He's laying for the workingman, who's much too poor to squeal.
He makes his hay while making's good, he takes our coin while taking's good,
While folks like us are wondering who'll pay for our next meal.

Brother Ed

By MILES OVERHOLT

ONE time my brother Ed was cast upon a desert isle. The captain said: "I calculate 'twill hold you for awhile." You see the captain threw him off. Ed pawed himself to land, for he is deaf and dumb and swims as well as talks by hand.

Well, Ed was cast upon that isle, where nothing ever grew because no one had planted seeds, which no one cared to do. You know it is a lonely task to farm a hill of sand, for oftentimes a blast of wind will resurrect the land.

But Ed, you know, is mighty smart, although his head is bare, and when the time to act arrives, why he will stand alone. "Now what about some seeds?" said Ed; "now what about some seeds?" He said that on ten fingers, for he was in greatest need. He hadn't eaten much but sand for nearly seven days; that's why he used his fingers in so many different ways.

"I need some corn to make my meal," said Edward, thinking fast, then quickly grabbed onto a thought before it bobbled past. He sat him down upon the ground with sudden burst of speed, then clipped the corns from his ten toes and took from each a seed and planted them in even rows along the water front; he then picked up a stone or two and started on a hunt.

Another thought occurred to him ere he had gone a mile—that's why he stopped and groaned and sighed until he forced a smile. "I need a patch of rye," he said, "to make a loaf of bread." (And yet some people laugh because he has a wooden head). And so he made a wry face which he planted with the corn, and he had a crop next morning just as sure as you are born.

He beat himself at solitaire and planted all the beats, and raised 'em in his gardenette along with other treats. He hopped along the rocky beach and raised a crop of hops; for Edward is a hustler and he's not the kind that stops when big contingencies arise—that's why he's rich to-day. He had hay fever badly, so he raised a crop of hay. And from his Adam's apple then he started quite a tract of orchard on a southern slope, which was a nifty act. He also raised the price of grain when schooners sailed that way and he made a million dollars just from selling musty hay.

He lived upon the island for about a hundred years—or anyway that's what he said. He often sheds great tears when he tells of his experience—that's when the tears are shed. But I offer, with that I could lie as free as brother Ed.

New England's Greatest Project of the Century
